Frank Orner Named Pennsylvania DHIA President

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HOME CAMP (Clearfield Co.)—When you deal sucessfully with other people around you, you may call it good public relations. But to the new president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association, public relations is simply old-fashioned neighborliness.

Frank Orner, who farms 400 acres on five farms just east of DuBois, with his parents, uncle, and cousins, was named head of Pennsylvania's largest dairy association last week at a board meeting in Sayre. William Jackson, New Salem, was named vice president; Joseph Lyons, Millville, secretary; and Norman Hershey, Gordonville, treasurer.

"We try to help our neighbors when we can," Orner said. "We plow the snow from their lanes and each year invite them for a hay ride and other activities on the farm. In return, if we have a problem or need some help, they are not reluctant to step in and offer help."

"The secret to good relations is not to be argumentative, but cooperative," Orner said. "It's not enough to only do what you must do to get the job done. You need to be friends with as many people as possible. In farm organizations as well as personally, the care of our neighbors is a very important aspect of agriculture right now.

"In DHIA we need to improve our relations with members as well as other segments of the industry. We need to work at our relationship with the bull studs. We have been working on our relationship with Penn State, but we need to do more.

"We need to work with government agencies because the lab generates waste. With fewer people in agriculture, the government tends to move away from us. That's why we need to try to work together.

"It's essential to the survival of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania that we work together. United we stand, divided we fall. It's as simple as that.

"Down the road, I would like to see more cooperation among farmers to get things done without the need for the farmer to use his fin-

Farmers Must Test Water For Herd, Family Health

ANDY ANDREWS

BERNVILLE (Berks Co.) — After returning from a Sunday drive one afternoon in August, dairy farmer Calvin Zerbe saw one of his prize cows, a 3-year-old, lying dead in the field.

A few months earlier, calves on milk replacer began to die. Cows wouldn't drink enough water, and their digestive systems would shut down. After the death of additional calves, Zerbe called a veterinarian. The vet's suggestion? Move the calves from the barn into hutches and administer antibiotics for every possible sickness. Zerbe did — but that didn't work. More calves began to die.

With all possible explanations for the deaths of his cattle ruled out, Zerbe considered another. Perhaps the well water needed testing?

After the results came back that the well water was so contaminated that it wasn't even fit for washing clothes, Zerbe did what he had to do.

New well system

Within a few months, Zerbe built a new well and new well water filtering system with help from a neighbor.

Zerbe, recognized this week by the Berks County Conservation District as farmer of the year, said that even drilling a new well wasn't enough. The previous well, contaminated by what he believes may have been surface water, was closed and a new one was built.

"We drilled a new well, and that didn't solve it all," he said. "We wound up putting a filtering system in and blacklight. And since that's been in, the herd health and the calves have been doing wonderful."

Zerbe admitted that the water problem had him perplexed for the longest time. Most farmers, according to the dairyman, don't bother to check their well water. Some know a problem exists but don't have the money or the resources to handle it. Instead, they rely on the advice of veterinarians and other experts to exact a quick cure — which often proves futile.

Highly contaminated

The water was highly contaminated, according to Zerbe. "We had just about everything," he said. "High nitrates, coliform bacteria . . . They said not do do anything with it, not wash clothes or anything.

Morrow grew up on a farm in Blair County and graduated from Penn State with high honors in 1956. Like many past recipients, he was a very active student. His early accomplishments include receiving the Mr. Agriculture Award (now known as the Outstanding Senior Award) and participating on both the dairy judging and livestock judging teams. During his college career, he chaired the Dairy Judging Contest and edited a student-produced magazine, Penn State Farmer. He also served as president of the Dairy Science Club and campus 4-H Club. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi, Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Epsilon Sigma Phi. He was also the Dairy Expo's Grand Champion Fitter in 1954 and Grand Champion Showman in 1955.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, April 8, 1992

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS. FEDERAL-STATE: Trucklot buying interest centered around tight supplies of whole breasts and wings. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were adequate for current needs but the undertone was unsettled. Most trades were reported at 1.85, some product was still available below 1.80, but some sellers asked higher prices for late week week production. Line run breasts were in close balance with immediate needs and buyers paid higher prices. All product booked for end of week delivery was at 92 cents or higher. Legs and leg quarters were adequate at current prices. Wings were short of buyer inquiries and buyers paid higher prices.

Delmarva Broiler-Fryer Market

Wednesday, April 8, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light to fair and about normal for mid-week activity. Supplies were fully adequate with lighter weight sizes in close balance at most plants. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 46 to 58 cents. Slaughter schedules were reduced and of moderate volume as some operations were curtailed. Additional down time was scheduled for later in the week and next week. Live supplies were moderate and weights were generally desirable to heavy. Trade sentiment was about steady. Whole breasts and wings were in a stronger position while boneless skinless breasts were steady at best.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 13-19, 1992

EASTER LORE

Easter, as currently celebrated in most households, is a curious blend of religious observance, ethnic tradition, and pagan customs. Since earliest times this most holy day in the Christian calendar has included ancient traditions. Eggs, an early symbol of seasonal regeneration and fertility, became a resurrection symbol as well. Other aspects of the seasonal rites which were transferred to Easter include dawn celebrations, lighting new fires, and adorning alters and homes with a profusion of flowers. Even the word Easter was borrowed from the Old High German by way of the dawn-goddess Ostara, whose festival (Ostern) was celebrated at the spring equinox. But Ostara gave us more than her name. Her escort was another fertility symbol, the rabbit, thereby providing one more tradition for modern times, the Easter Bunny.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EARTHWISE

Reducing the amount of waste that comes into our homes and diligently recycling is only half a solution. It's like trying to use half a pair of scissors — nothing is accomplished without the other half. The other half of recycling is using recycled products. If you recycle all your newspapers, but buy only virgin, bleached notebook paper for your kids it's one step forward and two steps back for the environment. As more and more people buy "recycled," the demand increases, the cost comes down, and everybody benefits, including Mother Earth.

CREAM OF TARTAR BISCUITS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup lard
¾ cup cold milk

Combine first three ingredients. Cut in lard with pastry blender. Add milk and toss with fork. Knead 5 or 6 times on lightly floured board. Roll to ½-inch thickness. Cut out biscuits and top each with a bit of butter. Bake at 475° F for 5 minutes. Turn off heat and leave in oven for 5-10 minutes longer, until golden. Makes 8-10 biscuits

The Real Investment

The annual fund raising banquet of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation is set for Wednesday, April, 22, 1992, in Hershey at the convention center. For the first time in seven years, ticket sales are ahead of the previous year. Sales are evaluated weekly in relation to the same time frame for the previous years. Banquet co-chairmen, Tom Bross III, Don Horn, and Scott Sechler reported this exceptional progress at a meeting in Lancaster in late March.

The fund raising event annually caps the events of the Federation and brings together a broad spectrum of poultry industry people. The money's raised keep the Federation running for the next year.

While sales are ahead, there are still previous and potential industry people who have not yet purchased tickets for the banquet. The banquet features country music star Ronnie Milsap and the evening begins with a social at 5:30 p.m.; dinner at 7:00 p.m. and entertainment from 9 to 10 p.m.

And while the banquet is a worthwhile reason to purchase tickets, the support of the Federation is even more important. Anyone in the poultry business will want to contribute by ordering tickets. The banquet is a nice dividend, but the real investment is in the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation.

By John Schwartz

To Not Forget The Cows

The arrival of spring is accompanied by a rash of farm activities. These include tilling the land, applying lime and fertilizer, hauling manure, seeding crops, and making hay.

Along with these spring jobs is the need to continue your herd management jobs. Identifying and balancing these job priorities becomes a juggling act during rush seasons of the year.

The dairy herd is the main source of income for a dairy farmer. Therefore, herd management should not be shortchanged during the spring rush season.

Rather than neglecting the herd or hiring untrained workers to perform herd chores, keep the best cow people near the barn and give them ample time to manage the herd.

Having the field work done in a timely fashion is also very important. Therefore, if necessary, hire someone to help with routine barn chores or field work so you will have your best people handling the critical spring planting jobs.

Also, you might want to consider using the services of custom operators for certain jobs.

To Jump Start Equipment The Right Way

Vehicles and machinery that have been idle during winter may be difficult to start. If you need to jump start a piece of equipment that has a weak or discharged battery, be sure to follow these safety tips provided by Sam Steel, director of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council.

First, connect the positive cable marked with a "+" or red clamps to the positive terminal of the weakened battery. Then clamp the other end of the positive cable to the positive post of the charged battery.

Next, connect the negative cable to the negative post of the good battery. Finally make the last connection of the negative cable to the engine block or frame of the non-starting vehicle.

By keeping the clamps of the weakened battery separated, one reduces the possibility of unwanted stray sparks causing an explosion or fire.

When jump starting a vehicle, always wear safety glasses to protect your eyes from acid or battery parts in the event of an explosion.

Once the vehicle is started, remove the cables in reverse order. Be careful not to allow the cables to contact each other when removing them.

To Be Considerate Of Neighbors

Spring starts many outside activities for both farmers and their urban neighbors. As we start our spring activities, try to be considerate of your neighbors.

Handle manure prudently. Pick the time for spreading manure when your neighbors are unlikely to be outside. Avoid spreading on weekends and holidays. Develop good public relations.

Nuisance complaints often stem from a lack of goodwill and poor image. Share their concerns and show them the steps you are taking to alleviate them.

Avoid unsightliness by improving the landscape of your farm. Remove any unsightliness that might suggest that your farm could be a source of odors, flies, or other cause of nuisance.

Plant trees or shrubs to screen areas. Make sure these trees are at least 50 feet away from buildings to allow adequate air movement.

A small investment in landscaping may prevent more costly actions. Remember, legal fees and court costs are very expensive. Spending a little to be a good neighbor could be one of the best investments you make.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE TRUTH

Background Scripture: Mark 15:1-41.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:1-12.

There are people I know who would be more kindly disposed toward Christianity if it weren't for the cross. Not the crosses in our church, you understand — those are beautifully gilded and bejeweled — but the cross so much as the crucifixion — that awful picture of Jesus dying in agony and shame. As one woman was overheard to say, "I don't like the crucifixion — it's so common!"

I can understand a little bit why some people find the cross so objectionable. I have been in great churches and cathedrals where every picture, every stained glass window, every statue seemed to perpetuate a crucifixion state of mind that twisted and distorted the Gospel from The Good News to perpetual Bad News. Some religious art has struck me as absolutely ghastly and not a few hymns.

GALLILEO & NEWTON

Yet, I know that the cross is central to Christianity because it dares to tell us the truth. Halford E. Luccock, a great professor of homiletics when I was a theological student, has written this commentary on Mark 15:24 — "And they crucified him."

According to the traditional story, Gallileo took a long and deep look at a swinging chandelier in a cathedral, and saw behind it the truth about the heavens, the movement of the earth. According to tradition, Newton took a long and deep look at an apple falling from a tree, and saw behind it the truth of gravitation. So those who have taken a long and deep look at Calvary have seen behind it the truth about God and man.*

That is probably why we find the cross so unattractive and even repulsive because it tells us the truth about God and human beings. Some of us would rather live with our illusions than face up to unpleasant truths. Among these are the truth about what can happen to good people: they can end up on a cross. We would like to believe that living a good life was insurance against crosses, but it isn't. In fact, living by God's guidance may bring crosses closer. That isn't the way we'd design the world, if we were doing it, is it?

The cross also tells us the truth about a word we don't even like to use: sin. The cross tells us that sin destroys. The really horrible thing about Calvary is that it claimed the life of a good man, a man more completely dedicated to God's will than any other who ever lived. But the sinfulness of human nature nailed an innocent Jesus to a cross. Those of us who would like to think that people are getting better and better every day — or at least some people — don't like what the cross says about the depths to which people can sink.

GOOD NEWS

But, if the cross tells us the truth about humanity, it also tell us the truth about God and that is Good News! Humanity did the very worst that it could, crucifying an innocent man God's own Son, and Calvary proved that the worst that we can do is not equal to the best that God can do. God goes to the cross with us, but God is not used up by our crosses. His love overcomes the biggest and meanest crosses we can find.

Maybe it was that which caused the centurion on Calvary to say in admiration, "Truly this man was a son of God" (15:39). Watching Jesus on the cross, the truth about God was revealed to him as again and again it is revealed to us, so that the cross stands not as the enduring symbol of human depravity, but as the eternal sign of divine grace.

OUR CUSTOMERS CROPS ARE BRINGING BIG PREMIUM PRICES BECAUSE THE BUYERS LEARN THAT THEY ARE WORTH IT

Their cows do better on feed that is naturally rich out of the field, grown on non-toxic, mineral rich fertilizer rather than on toxic and mineral deficient fertilizer, and then supposed to be balanced by man. Man's knowledge is far inferior to the Creator's. Right?

An honest vet changed to an agronomist and soil consultant, preventing cow diesease rather than trying to cure them by treating only the symptoms. Treating the cause is the answer. Hear him at another local seminar in early August.

HE SAID A CUSTOMER'S MILK PRODUCTION JUMPED FROM 55 LB. PER DAY TO 75 LBS. IN ONE MONTH AFTER CHANGING FROM CHEMICAL GROWN SILAGE TO 3rd YEAR ORGANIC SILAGE (A DIFFERENT PART OF THE FARM)

He figured it amounts to about $40,000 more profit per year. He got his neighbors to do the same. Then they put up a Christian radio station with the profit. "Fear not, O Lord, be glad and rejoice for I will do great things." Joel 2:21.

A Lanc. Co. customer paid $8.00 per bu. for a load of soybeans from a Chester Co. customer who knew they are worth it. Cows do better. Others are paying it also.

$12.00 PER BU. IS OFFERED FOR WHITE TOXIC FREE SOYBEANS FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION, BY THE SEMI LOAD.

They can't get enough. Our Nutri-Carb will make it non-toxic in first crop.

SPELTZ, SIMILAR TO WINTER OATS, YIELDS 100 BU. TO 150 BU. PER ACRE.

Has very nigh nutrition, therefore demand is huge, both for livestock and flour by the semi loads. Price is 10¢ per lb. when grown toxic free.

Organic farming does not polute the Chesapeake bay. Can you know a good thing when you see it?

AND WE HAVE A VERY LOW PRICE ON A SPECIAL NEW BLEND — GOOD FOR HAY FIELDS, PASTURES, NEW CROPS AND ALL! ASK FOR LITERATURE.

Large, Profitable Dairies Rely On Array Of Management Techniques

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — For dairy farms that plan to expand, the foundation to success lies in providing the greatest number of replacement heifers.

"Farm businesses that are really, really highly successful — boy, can they do a job at raising heifers," said Gary Snider, farm business consultant. Snider spoke at the Large Dairy Herd Management Seminar here Wednesday.

The two-day seminar, sponsored by the Farm Credit Associations of Pennsylvania, drew about 200 dairy farmers and agribusiness representatives from around the state.

On the first day of the seminar, Snider outlined the results of information on the most productive large-scale dairy farms in Pennsylvania. The results of the survey were distributed as "key evaluation factors" at the seminar.

Looked at top percent

The factors looked at the top 25 percent of the Pennsylvania large-scale (more than 100-cow) dairy operations.

According to Snider, family-size farms in the 60-150 cow range need to look at the future, a future which will involve a lot more quick, sharp fluctuations in the dairy price.

"The dairy industry is going to start riding a roller coaster similar to the other commodities," said Snider. "And that has to change our management style. We've got to start managing businesses differently."

Knowing at what part of the up or down cycles to expand or cut back is of vital importance, according to Don Rogers, vice president, Farm Credit Banks of Springfield, Mass. at the seminar.

Snider said businesses "in the middle" — those who are larger than the family-size, 30-60 cow herds and those who are not quite large-scale — are the ones "that we're really kind of concerned about."

Reshape practices

Because of the ups and downs in the milk price and the changing demands of the industry, farmers must rethink and reshape their management practices.

Snider outlined several key management factors that are common among all the successful large-scale dairies.

"Farm businesses that are really, really highly successful — boy, can they do a job at raising heifers," said Gary Snider, farm business consultant. Snider spoke at the Large Dairy Herd Management Seminar in Carlisle Wednesday.

"One of the things that we've seen in these large dairy businesses is that the manager . . . has become very good at delegating," he said.

According to the consultant, managers:

• Don't get bogged down in the daily tasks. "They don't worry about getting to a meeting because they haven't got the barn cleaned, because someone else has got the barn cleaned," he said.

• Are very careful with investments. "They choose the three things they need versus the one they want," he said. They are able to budget correctly.

• Make use of monitoring techniques. Snider said that, on one successful farm in western New York, a chart examining the milking capability of each cow over two years is posted. Every day, the herdsmen review the chart, which includes milk production per day per cow. Also, a chart is available to monitor dry matter intake. Since the advent of TMR, the whole industry has changed and the farms with the more cows also have the higher producing cows in the top-25 survey.

• Compare actual cash-flow to budgetary cash flow. "They have their pulse on the business," he said. One farm uses a 3 X 5 card system — managers and herdsmen list "to do" activities and the information is shared.

• Are highly organized. "Spring doesn't catch them by surprise," said Snider. "I have a farm business that's milking 1,300 cows, and last year they had all their first crop hay in nine days," he said.

• Insist that employees or managers are also organized. A management team meets for 10-15 minutes every day. An advisory team is in place — veterinarians, nutritionists, loan officers, accountants, etc. "The highly successful dairy farm businesses use those advisors and they use them all the time, and I think they get an awful lot out of them people," said Snider.

• Have charisma. "They are the type of leaders that people want to work for," he said.

• Work with a cropland base that is high yielding, weather-resistant with fast harvesting type of land. Also, an environmental buffer zone is in place. One of the largest and most succcessful of businesses Snider works with is a 1,350-cow operation (which plans to expand to 1,600 by fall) that moved off the home farm because "it wasn't a good farm," said Snider. Also, a source of "really good water in a farm business is going to become important," he said. Environmental issues are also paramount, and each farm operation should begin to think in terms of 1.5 acres of land per cow. "The environmental issues are sneaking up on us and they're going to bite us pretty soon," said Snider.

Whatever the business management techniques, heifer management will continue to be "our ace in the hole when we start looking at efficiences in our business," said Snider.

Industry cycles

Dairies would do well to know and understand there will be cycles in the industry. And knowing at what part of the up or down cycles to expand or cut back is of vital importance, according to Don Rogers, vice president, Farm Credit Banks of Springfield, Mass. at the seminar.

"Farming the Dairy Cycles" examined why there will be more and more of the up and down years in the dairy business and what

Lancaster Farmland Trust, Manheim Township Buy TDRs

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust and Manheim Township have possibly become the first combination public authority and private organization in Pennsylvania to buy transferable development rights.

Lancaster Farmland Trust is an organization dedicated to preserving farmland in Lancaster County.

In the past, the organization has purchased land to preserve as farmland, but this is the first time that a farmland preservation plan has been carried out jointly by a public municipality and a private organization.

Through its other work, Lancaster Farmland has permanently preserved more than 2,500 acres of farmland in Lancaster County from residential and commercial development.

Last week, a complex transaction between Lancaster County developer James Hogan, of Hogan Development Company, and the Lancaster Farmland Trust and Manheim borough was completed, in which Hogan sold development rights for 56 subdivisions for $150,000 to the township.

The township paid $100,000 and $50,000 was paid by the trust. The land is now in a perpetual conservation easement held by Lancaster Farmland Trust.

The 80-acre property was formerly owned by Amos Landis, and was purchased by Hogan Development for $840,000 at public auction.

The farm has been in the Landis family for more than 100 years and is an Historic Homestead.

The farm also lies within Manheim Township's new Transferable Development Rights (TDR) Program district and carried 56 TDR, which Hogan could have used on another property to increase housing density, while leaving the Landis farm unscathed.

Instead, in a joint effort, Manheim Township and Lancaster Farmland Trust purchased and retired the TDRs, which can not be used again. Thus Hogan has become the first developer in Lancaster County to preserve farmland.

Hogan has also traded the farming-only Landis property for another property on Snyder Road which is adjacent to an existing development.

The Landis farm is to be operated by an Old Order Amishman.

Normally, and in the future, the TDR system in Manheim will result in TDRs being transferred to other sites to increase permissible density.

In this case, Hogan Development Co. tried to find a market for the TDRs, but with the market for new housing down, Lancaster Farmland and the township offered instead to purchase and extinguish those building rights.

The Landis farm is considered key and central to the agricultural district in Manheim Township. It is the second farm in Manheim to be preserved and 143rd farm in Lancaster County.

For more information on the Lancaster Farmland Trust, call (717) 293-0707, or write to Lancaster Farmland Trust, P.O. Box 1562, Lancaster, 17603.

Large, Profitable Dairies

large-scale operators (or those wanting to be) can do.

"We can learn a lot from our non-dairy farming neighbors," said Rogers. A lot of practices during the cycles that vegetable farmers (particularly potato farmers) endure in New York may be of value to dairy farms, according to Rogers.

In the future, two types of dairies will emerge — the "mega-dairy" (200-head cow size and larger) and the one-family farms (60- to 100-head operations). Rogers said he sees an increasing polarization, particularly in Michigan and western New York, of both types.

Be conservative

For small farms to remain competitive, they must be conservative, have nonfarm income, and be able to find good quality roughage.

What continues to happen in the industry, according to Rogers, is that young people are renting farms, putting cows on, and buying roughage on in these "starter" farms.

For those with 90-150 cows, they "will have to do a lot of soul-searching and ask themselves where they want to go."

For smaller farms to survive, according to Rogers, they must continue to be open-minded, well-informed, and goal-oriented. Also, they must continue to obtain and use good records and know what the barriers are to getting more production out of a cow.

Envelopes never opened

"DHIA supervisors tell me the biggest problem is that the envelopes are never opened," he said. Using records, and knowing what to do in the current dairy "up" cycle, is critical. Farmers must.

- Put into practice three needs for every want, and to buy equipment on a schedule and when needed.
- Not compromise or reduce business standards. Push to get more out of the producing cow.
- Be conservative on analyzing investment opportunities.
- Work at getting business back in balance, on the items skipped when the dairy was in the down cycle.
- Maintain a financial reserve. Salt some funds away while reducing debt, he said.

Poultry Manure Can Be A Money-Maker

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — It's time for poultry farmers to turn their liabilities into assets.

For many farmers, poultry manure has been nothing but a problem they must constantly deal with. But all that may change when they realize that poultry manure is actually a gold mine, and, if composted and turned into useful fertilizer, can generate a great deal of profit.

Those were the conclusions of a recent survey conducted by the Penn State as part of the Rural Clean Water Program and the Chesapeake Bay Program. At the end of the survey of 390 farms, nearly three times as many farmers have signed up to receive manure as to supply it, according to Leon Ressler, Lancaster ag/environment extension agent.

Ressler spoke about poultry manure as an asset during the two-day Pennsylvania Poultry Sales and Service Conference at the Nittany Lion Inn on Tuesday.

Nutrient surplus

"Animal products such as milk, eggs, beef, and pork are exported from the farm, but a surplus of crop nutrients remain behind in the form of animal manures," said Ressler. "Increasing environmental concerns about agricultural nonpont source pollution makes it imperative that farmers find ways to export their surplus animal waste for other uses."

In March and October last year, a list of supplier and receivers of animal manures was complied and distributed. Of the 390 farms, 286 signed up to receive manure.

"This indicates a real marketing opportunity exists for those with excess manure nutrients," said Ressler. "In this high livestock area, the lesser number of those who signed up to supply manure is not an indication of limited supply but is probably a reflection of unwillingness of farmers who have excess manure to draw attention to themselves for fear of repercussions."

In the summary, according to Ressler, among the receivers, 27 percent are specially interested in compost, 49 percent are willing to pay for the manure, 39 percent are only interested in the manure is free, and 22 percent are only interested if the supplier can apply the manure.

Apply manure

Among the suppliers, 25 percent are able to apply the manure, 13 percent are able to deliver the manure but not apply it, 33 percent are willing to supply the manure free if the receiver picks it up, and 3 percent have a composted product.

Other answers indicate 34 percent have tested their manure, 73 percent have never calibrated their manure spreader, and 13 percent regularly market manure to other operations.

Ressler said he heard one Cumberland County poultry farmer say, at the recent Poultry Progress

Blackstar Daughter Tops Holstein Showcase Sale

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The largest crowd ever for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Showcase Sale filled the Penn State University Ag Arena April 4 and watched as 182 head were sold for a total of $346,500.

The top selling animal was a Blackstar daughter consigned by Vaneta Syndicate of Roaring Branch. Andrew Stoltzfus, of Morgantown, purchased the 3-year-old Kemview Blackstar Vaneta-ET for $13,200.

Vaneta was scored for the first time March 5 and is a Very Good 88 with an Excellent mammary. She gave 81.5 pounds of milk testing at 5.3 percent fat for her first test. Her Thor son has been sold to an A.I. stud.

Her dam was Kemview Vanessa-Et, an Enhancer daughter which classified as a Very Good 88 at 3 years.

Stoltzfus wasn't only buying. A Stoltzfus consignment, flush choice of eight due September, was picked up by Kirby and Sheryl Horst of Newmanstown for $4,100.

The dam is Caernarvon Ned Judy-ET, a VG89, and the sire is Curtmaid Emerald Target, with a TPI of +997.

The average selling price for the whole sale was $1,903 per animal.

A further breakdown shows that 38 cows sold for $90,600, or an average of $2,455 each.

Bred heifers numbered 36 and sold for a total of $70,925, or an average of $1,970.

One hundred and one calves sold for a total of $164,525 with the average going for $1,628.

There were seven choices selling for $20,450 or an average of $2,921.

Kenneth Raney, director of member services for the Holstein Association, said, "It was a great sale. The fitting crew had the animals in top shape."

The fitting crew was headed by Creedin Cornman and Glenn Tripp.

"Buyers were from all over," Raney said, specifying Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, New Jersey, Tennessee, North Carolina, California, Missouri and Canada.

Auctioneering were Mike Weimer and David Rama, while Horace Backus read pedigrees.

The second highest selling animal was Teachers Pets Cubby Judith, a Dec. 7-born calf consigned by Ann Kopp, of Middletown. She was purchased for $6,400 by Tom and Dan Wilson of Saegertown.

Judith's dam is a Blackstar daughter. Her granddam is Walk-up Bell Lou Etta, a Very Good 88 maternal sister to the great Lou Ella.

And the next maternal generation is dominated by Chairman, To-mar, Ivanhoe Bell and Astronaut.

On the sire side is Bova, Valiant, and Elevation, heavy on the Elevation and Valiant.

Third highest seller was a choice of two calves — one born Jan. 14, the other born Jan. 19, consigned by Alan Meyers, of Greencastle. The pick was purchased for $6,100 by Tim Barlow and Dave Rama, both of Cochranville.

The unregistered heifer calves are maternal sisters to a Very Good Cleitus daughter with an excellent mammary which made 30,940 pounds of 3.5 percent fat and 3.3 percent protein milk as a 2-year-old.

The top seller of the Pennsylvania Holstein Showcase Sale, Kemview Blackstar Vaneta-ET, is being led around the show ring, while bids are taken. She sold for $13,200 to Andrew Stoltzfus of Morgantown.

The dam is Tidy Brook Sally Ned Boy, a Good Plus 84 at 4 years old. The calves are Bellman (son of Ivanhoe Bell) daughters.

Other notable sales include:

• A 3-year-old Blackstar daughter consigned by Pease Farm and Harold Hartt, of Susquehanna, which sold for $4,600 to Ronald Hembury, of Muncy.

• A September-born Leadman calf out of an Excellent 92 Mark daughter with a 3-5 record of 36,640 pounds of 3.2 percent protein milk. She was consigned by Melanie Hottenstein of New Albany and was purchased for $4,300 by Lester Poust, of Muncy.

• A Jan. 26-born Cubby heifer calf out of a Very Good Satan daughter which was consigned by Poust and purchased by Eric Hoover of Tyrone for $4,000.

Schools Must Fight Animal Rightists, Says Foundation

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — Our public schools are quickly becoming a battleground for the ideologies of animal rights activists, and the farm community must find some way to intervene.

And the problem of ag illiteracy in public schools continues to worsen, according to Steve Bussen, Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living, at the annual Chester-Delaware County Farmers' Association spring banquet Thursday night.

Bussen said that the Foundation is stepping up efforts to respond to the work of animal rights activitists and their drive to shut down animal agriculture. The Foundation is helping to promote the ongoing Ag in the Classroom program, which instructs children in schools about the workings of agriculture.

Bussen said it is the Foundation's "hope and desire to bring agriculture back to the right level of understanding with the facts" to the children in public schools.

Also at the meeting, Harold Kulp, county representative to the PFA, spoke about the recent legislative day. Thirteen members of the local association went to Harrisburg and discussed various bills, including the proposed H.B. 496, which the local association believes needs more "tuning," according to Kulp. Kulp said members were reviewing H.B. 1530, which provides more "teeth" for the advisory committee to nutrient legislation to function. H.B 1072 (sustainable ag research) and S.B. 92 (wetlands) were also discussed, in addition to other currently proposed legislation.

Ed Cannon, of the Environmental Advisory Committee, spoke about a special pilot program in which the association committee will act as liaison between the DER and the local farmer. The group will become involved in investigating and solving current environmental problems to offer suggestions to solving the problems in a confidential way for farmers.

Charles Wollaston, membership committee, reported the local organization signed up 683 paid members out of their goal of 675.

Awards were presented at the meeting, including special recognition for Leon Wilkinson, board member of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Commission (a plate from the American Farm Bureau Research Foundation). Also awarded was the gold Kingpin award to Charles Wollaston and the Kingpin to Barclay Hoopes.

Special recognition also went to Linda Hicks for work on the Farm Tour program.

Special recognition went to Leon Wilkinson, board member of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Commission, right, by Richard Breckbill, president of the Chester-Delaware County Farmers' Association Thursday night.

Also awarded was the gold Kingpin honor to Charles Wollaston, center, and the Kingpin to Barclay Hoopes, right, by Roy Romberger, regional organizational director.

Recognition also went to Linda Hicks, right, for work on the Farm Tour program by Richard Breckbill, president of the Chester-Delaware County Farmers' Association.

Poultry Manure Can Be A Money-Maker

Days, "I came to this meeting in a new BMW. Every year I buy a new BMW with income from my poultry manure sales."

Many crops are big nutrient consumers, and, because poultry is an important source of phosphates, the industry can do well to supply a resource that the mine industry predicts will run out between the years 2000 and 2005.

Ressler emphasized the importance of manure testing and explained the ways to calculate the value of manure. The value is determined by the price of nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium in the area; a test to determine the N-P-K content of the manure; and using the Pa. Agronomy Guide to determine N available for manure under a specific management system.

Ressler spoke about the benefits of manure processing (composting and pelletizing) and the wide array of markets for manure (landscape contractors, highway departments, public works, and home builders). Also, other markets include the horticulural industry, container industry, and other markets.

Not happy times

"These are not exactly the happiest times for our industry," said George Watts, president of the National Broiler Council at the conference. Watts spoke about current issues facing the poultry industry.

"It was a lot more fun in recent months when the industry was profitable," said Watts. "And looking back several years, it was even more fun when we were not under constant attack from critics at every turn who seem to go out their way to bash the poultry industry and poultry products."

Watts said that 6.3 billion broilers will be produced this year and will result in the marketing of 20.7 billion pounds on a ready-to-cook weight basis. On average, each American will have almost 25 broilers availble this year.

In addition, the cost of chicken to consumers today is only a fraction of the cost in 1928 — when politicians were telling voters: "I promise a chicken in every pot."

Competition keen

Broiler production will likely increase by about 5 percent this year over 1991, he said. "Competition is very keen for the consumer's food dollar and many grocery stores and restaurant chains are using poultry's characteristics of value and nutrition/healthfulness to gain a greater share of the food dollar," he said.

Watts also spoke about legislation that will affect the industry in a variety of ways, including pollution prevention (reducing the quantity and toxicity of toxic chemicals used in commerce); pending clean water act amendments; and legislation to federally protect farmers, ranchers, biomedical researchers, educators, and others against increasing radical activist violence.

Watts said the House Committee on Agriculture recently favorably reported H.R. 2407, the Farm Animal and Research Facility Protection Act of 1992. If enacted, the legislation would subject future violators to a fine and imprisonment of one to 20 years, depending on the degree of seriousness of the violation. It also provides for restitution of reasonable costs associated with theft and vandalism by anyone convicted under the act.

The bill now goes to the House Judiciary Committee for review and, said Watt, hopefully on to the House floor for a vote by the full House of Representatives.

Role of computers

Marc White, broiler manager, Rocco, Harrisonburg, Va. spoke about the role of computers in managing broiler flocks.

White spoke about the new computer software, Broiler Examination and Calculation System (BEACS), which databases and calculates broiler managment efficiencies.

Panels also focused on cleaning and disinfecting poultry houses, communications, nutrient management programs, and other topics. The egg session featured information on managing pullets, Salmonella enteritidis and recomendations for its control.

Progressive Farmers Produce Quality Milk

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Five Progressive Dairymen's Cooperative members received recognition for their outstanding quality milk production for 1991.

The awards were presented by Glenn Baker, of United Dairy Services, during the cooperative's annual meeting held late March at the Edgewood Restaurant in Troy. Progressive is a member of United Dairy Services in Seneca Falls, N.Y.

Each year United provides these awards to the top quality producers in each of its member cooperatives in recognition of the outstanding efforts made by its members to provide quality milk going into wholesale dairy products for the consumer.

It is the first year that all awards went to Pennsylvania producers.

Tied for first place this year were Charles and Paul Allen, of Granville Summit, and Judity Wheeler of Tioga. Each received a plaque and a check for $50.

Placing third was Michael Stickler of Lawrenceville followed by Dennis and Andrea Eckert of New Albany and Jerry Young of Crossroads. Each of these members received a certificate and check in recognition of their achievement.

United provides marketing, accounting and legislative services for small cooperatives and agricultural organizations. Small cooperatives are unique in that they provide the opportunity for neighbor to help neighbor to improve the quality of life for the family farm.

Select Sires Ready For Future

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — "Select Sires is well positioned to take care of its future. We have more sires sampled and in waiting than any time in our history. We have the facilities. We have the people. We look forward to our future with a great deal of optimism because we know we are the best A.I. organization in the world."

These comments from Select Sires' General Manager, Richard Chichester, generated enthusiasm and optimism at the federation's 1992 Annual Meeting held March 27-28 at its headquarters in Plain City, Ohio.

Chichester went on to report, "1991 was our very best year in beef sales. Everyone who is involved in beef aspect of this organization needs to congratulate themselves on their excellent performance."

Two Genetic Greats Recognized

Delegates and directors from Select's 12 member cooperatives were on hand to pay tribute to 7H543 Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell and 7H980 Walkway Chief Mark. Together these two PGA graduates produced and sold over 1.1 million units of semen. The headstones for these bulls were dedicated in front of the Kellgren Production Center where the sires rest.

Clarence Boyke, president of Select Sires, unveiled Bell's marker and commented on his impact in their Vir-Clar herd, "We had the first milking Bells in Wisconsin and received lots of publicity from them.

"Called the Fabulous 9, all scored Very Good (85-88) after their second classifications and after two lactations they averaged 1,039 fat. Bell was a truly great sire for us."

Today Bell's legacy rings on. He is either the sire or grandsire of over one-fourth of the Holstein Association's Top 400 TPI sires. In his January 1992 USDA sire summary, Bell has 76,733 daughters, second only in the breed to 7H401 Marshfield Elevation Tony.

Unconvering Mark's gravestone, Select's first vice president, Bill Genasci exclaimed, "There are only a few bulls who can increase milk production, sire fancy type, and make your good cows even better. Mark is one of these bulls! We are milking 33 Marks and they are some of the best cows we've bred. They average 117% of the herd and four are scored Excellent. Mark is a great bull but his genetic legacy is just beginning with his sons."

Mark is the sire of the most sons in Holstein's Top 100 and Top 400 TPI lists. He also leads the January 1992 Elite List for the number of high PTA cows with 1,449 daughters at or above +187 Protein Dollars.

Leadership Changes Hands

Select's Board of Directors, made of directors from the 12 member co-ops, elected three new officers to guide the future of the industry's largest A.I. cooperative. Bill Genasco of All West/Select Sires will lead the federation as president. William McGee, Midsouth/Select Sires, will serve as first vice president. COBA/Select Sires board member, Charles Moellendick, was elected second vice president.

In addition to strong leadership, the Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling and proving system is the backbone of Select Sires. PGA Recognition Awards are presented annually to the member cooperatives that most efficiently manage the program in their service area. Minnesota/Select Sires was awarded the Heifer Efficiency Award for generating the most identified young sires' daughters from the fewest units of PGA semen. Prairie State/Select Sires was awarded the Cow Efficiency Award for identifying milking daughters of PGA sires. The award for the member co-op that showed the most improvement in cow efficiency for 1991 was awarded to TABA/Select Sires.

Max Reapsome, Loysville, PA

That's how Max Reapsome recalls his beginnings with Fertrell fertilizer - over 12 years ago! Starting with top dressing alfalfa, Max soon began using Fertrell fertilizers more widely. Here's why: "With Fertrell the quality of my feed is better. It allows my cows to get more nutrition out of the same amount of feed or less. Plus, my herbicide use has been reduced 30 to 40 percent and I haven't needed pesticides for over 8 years! And that saves me money."

Just ask a Fertrell representative to develop a personalized fertilizer plan for you. He'll analyze you soil's elements, your crops and growing conditions, and show you how to balance all three so you can "see the difference right away!"

Management Information For Barn Use

The Pennsylvania DHIA Board of Directors reaffirmed its intention to serve the needs of all dairymen in Pennsylvania last week when a statement to that effect was approved at the Board meeting held at the Guthrie Inn in Sayre. The text of the statement, which was signed by all eighteen members of the Board, is as follows:

"Be it known, at the April 2, 1992 Board meeting, we, the Pennsylvania DHIA State Board of Directors, unanimously and without reservation, affirm to all dairymen in Pennsylvania our willingness, desire, and full commitment to provide, in a cooperative spirit, those services desired and beneficial to Pennsylvania dairymen. Our cooperative efforts in achieving future success and innovations in our industry require the efforts of each and every dairyman or elected representative to be committed to the success, growth and improvement of our dairy industry."

This statement by the Board is meant to convey to the dairy community the association's intention to be a leader in DHIA services with state-of-the-art technology and information for the successful management of the dairy farm today and in the future.

At the same meeting, a joint resolution with Northeast DHIA was adopted. The resolution is as follows:

"Where as the PA DHIA and NE DHIA boards of directors recognize the need to plan for the future and the challenges presented and where as the boards recognize the value of working together to accomplish goals beneficial to all members.

"Therefore, be it resolved that a joint committee be formed to accomplish these goals and that the committee be made up by two members from each board and one staff person from each organization.

"Be it further resolved that this joint committee be charged with, but not limited to: 1. Communication Improvement; 2. Joint Software Support; 3. Long Range Research and Development planning."

Frank Orner Named

gers to do the work," Orner said. "While you can't hire someone to talk to your legislators, you can hire management to operate the businesses that provide services to farmers. If farmers set the policies and pricing and give direction to the management of the association, the job can get done and you as a farmer can concentrate on what you are good at—producing milk or raising crops."

The Orner family milks two herds, one of registered Guernseys and the other of Registered and grade Holsteins. In the Guernsey herd, Summit Farms Criss Crystal stands out with a 7 year 8 month record of 18,570 pounds of milk, 821 pounds of fat, and 575 pounds protein. On the Holstein side, Summit-Farms Eckos Excell was just classified excellent last week to go along with her 7 years 3 month record of 24,800 pounds milk, 793 pounds fat, and 700 pounds protein. Excell is the kind of cow that keeps looking better with age. Every member of both herds carries the Summit-Farms' prefix.

Haylage and corn silage form the basis for the feeding program. These are balanced with chopped hay, soybean meal, and rolled soybeans.

In 1976 when Orner graduated from Penn State, high moisture corn was new to the feeding program. Shortly thereafter TMR was introduced and the benefits of these methods could be seen in a 2,000 pound gain in the rolling herd average.

Orner believes DHIA records and forage testing are the two major tools needed by dairymen. "What your cows produce and what kind of feed you have on the farm are the two major management inputs you need," Orner said.

Orner's nutritionist uses Pennsylvania's ARIS program to sort out herd profiles to group cows according to age and stage of lactation. They analyze herd consistency of performance and make sure fat/protein ratios are correct so the cows have proper energy/protein balance. They also use DHIA records to keep tabs on reproduction performance.

Orner gives special credit to the Pennsylvania DHIA program that helped them correct a problem that was costing a lot of money and would not have been known without the records. When Orner checked the profiles on the State's new herd management award program, he noticed that the days to peak production on the Holstein herd was much to long. On the Guernsey herd, the peak production was being achieved at almost the ultimate time. They ran the new herd evaluator program to look at the history of the herds to see if they were doing something wrong that could be changed.

The results showed that the Holstein herd was not receiveing the proper fat/protein ratios in the early part of the lactations. Fresh cows were not getting enough energy so bypass energy as well as bypass protein were recommended for these cows. The changes that were made because of this information gave good production increase.

"We found out we weren't doing as good at feeding as we could," Orner said. "This one bit of information gleaned from DHIA records more than paid for the cost of testing. Our costs run close to $140 per month. The increase from these changes is making us more than $1,000 per month."

Orner believes the future use of DHIA records and the importance of these records will be heavily influenced by the decision-making software that can be tied into it. A lot of these programs will be in the hands of consultants or owners of larger farms. Instead of a lot of numbers, the herd manager will use the power of the computer to go through the numbers and come up with information that will show ways to improve.

"One of the challenges is to get dairymen to use their records more," Orner said. "DHIA must supply its members with good products at a reasonable price so farmers can make use of these records for their decision-making process. In addition, these products must intergrate with the software programs so they can be used for managing the total farm.

Ten years from now I would hope I could spend more time here at the farm and enjoy things a little more than I do right now. A lot of effort goes into DHIA and all of our family is involved in a lot of activities off the farm with organizations.

"We have traditionally had good markets here in the east; we are close to the people. This may or may not continue to be an advantage. We may need to shift to different areas of emphasis. But as we continually look at where our advantages are, if we work together, we can make the best use of our advantages.

"I'm optimistic."

Frank Orner believes public relations is simply old fashioned neighborliness.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $110 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past four years, we returned more than $110 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $31,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

75 Years of Service to Dairy Farmers

Farm Credit was born in a time when the work was hard. The market was uncertain. And farmers urgently needed a dependable source of credit.

The more things change, the more they stay the same.

In 1917, Farm Credit was established to provide farmers with reliable credit, on their kinds of terms. And ever since, tools have changed, times have changed. But one thing's remained constant: Farm Credit is America's most dependable source of credit to agriculture. And you can depend on us to be here in the years ahead. Call us next time you need credit. Because it's not just our heritage that binds us together. It's also our future.

Farmers Must Test Water For Herd, Family Health

"It got to the point where we were losing cattle, losing calves, they were dying for us. We didn't know what was the matter.

"Basically, when it rained, our water was always cloudy or muddy, so we were getting surface water in somehow," he said. Both of the farms he owns were tested. "We didn't really have any water that was fit to drink. So we had to do something."

The same water was being pumped out for use in the home. The Zerbes had gotten so used to the contaminated water that it wasn't until they installed the new well and chlorination system that they could tell the difference.

Didn't taste right

Zerbe smiled when he recalled his wife's reaction when one day, after the new well system was installed, he poured himself a cup of coffee. He tasted it, and admitted that "it didn't taste right.

"My wife said that I was so used to the bad-tasting water that I didn't know what good water tasted like," he said.

The point is, according to the dairy farmer, that farmers take their water systems for granted. They ignore the problems or, worse, don't want to consider the problem could be something other than what the veterinarian or other experts claim it is.

"It's a bigger problem than what most will say," he said. "It's getting more and more every year that you're hearing about problems with the water."

Herd problems

Zerbe said he attends conferences and seminars with farmers who talk about herd health problems.

"Quality of the water is taken for granted, because nobody thought that it was . . . well, we're not living near a town or development project or anything like that, and the water's poor.

"I hear about farmers losing a calf or cow or something, and sure, they'll have the symptoms of these diseases or whatever that they claim, but it's the weakened state of (the cattle's) immune system or weakened (physical) state as it is from poor water," he said.

Zerbe said the system now works fine, and he loses calves only from calving problems in general, and not because of the water. It was hard, however, to solve the problem, because money was tight (it cost more than $2,000 to drill a new well). He said it came to the point "where I figured now we're losing more money that what it's costing to get a well, so we got it done anyway," he said.

Get Water Checked

Zerbe recalled the story a salesman told about two dairy farmers living side by side. One of them does well, the other doesn't. "The other one down the road tries so hard and still isn't getting along as good as he should," Zerbe said. "When you're doing everything you think is right, get the water checked."

Zerbe owns and maintains a total of 174 acres and rents an additional 75 acres. Last year, the dairyman grew about 50 acres of hay (including orchard grass and alfalfa) and 70 acres of corn. He also raises about 70-80 acres of soybeans every year, which he grows and roasts for his own feed.

Despite last year's drought, which also affected Zerbe's farm, the dairyman was able to obtain about 110 bushels per acre of corn on the average and about 50 bushels per acre of soybeans.

Calvin Zerbe, Bernville, was recognized this week by the Berks County Conservation District as farmer of the year. It was only about four years ago that a conservation plan was drawn up on the farm, including contour strips. Other conservation practices include diversion ditches and grass waterways. Photo by Andy Andrews.

Zerbe said he was "lucky we got one rain in July that pulled us through," he said. "Other parts of the county were more affected."

In all, Zerbe manages about 30 head of grade Holsteins with about 14 heifers as replacements. He also raises about 30 head of Holstein beef. In recent years, because of a lack of labor, he sold many of the dairy cows and heifers.

Plan Drawn Up

Zerbe purchased the farm from his father, Ralph Zerbe, in 1978, and farms with his wife Sharon and son Ryan, 14 and Renee, 16. It was only about four years ago that a conservation plan was drawn up on the farm, including contour strips. Other conservation practices include diversion ditches and grass waterways.

An important conservation practice, to Zerbe, was the installation of a concrete circular manure storage stucture in August 1990. The 14-foot deep structure has the capability of holding manure, on a gravity flow system, for about six months. Twice a year, the manure is agitated, pumped out, and spread on the fields where needed.

Zerbe said that the whole process of agitating and pumping the manure into a truck for chisel incorporation into the soil takes about 8-10 hours each time.

In the past, Zerbe would make daily applications of manure to his fields. Now, twice a year, the manure is incoporated directly into the ground.

A newly constructed feeder trough makes it easier for Calvin Zerbe to manage his beef cattle.

Paper bedding to absorb moisture and for cow comfort has been used on the Zerbe farm for quite some time.

Calvin Zerbe built a new well and filtering system with help from a neighbor. The previous well may have been contaminated by surface water, according to Zerbe.

An important conservation practice, to Zerbe, was the installation of a concrete circular manure storage stucture in August 1990.

Better system

"It's a better system," he said. "There's difficulty plowing it when it's on top of the ground. It's messy."

Zerbe said he went to this type of system after two years of touring other farms to see what other farmers were doing.

"So far, I'm happy with it," he said. "I don't miss spreading manure every day. This year there's been very little snow, so the only time I needed to use a tractor was to grind feed."

Zerbe remembered the time when he spread manure daily.

"I knew it wasn't the way it should have been. But, when we got into water problems, the quality of the water was that bad that we had to do something."

Adams PFA Members Urged To Review Plans

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association planning and evaluation team urges all members of the Adams County Farmers' Association, including the board of directors, county committee members and cabinet heads, to share ideas regarding the future of the organization with fellow members and peers.

The PFA planning and evaluation team has worked diligently over the last several months to collect and analyze information about PFA and its programs and operations. As a result, the 15-member team has been able to develop a reasonably accurate "forecast" of what PFA/ACFA will look like as an organization in 1997.

In order to gain valuable insight as to what PFA should look like in 1997, the planning and evaluation team has scheduled six regional "speak-up meetings" across the state. Members of the planning team will review the planning mode, discuss the "1997 PFA Forecast," and solicit ideas from the membership regarding the changing future course of PFA. The meetings are open to all PFA members and staff.

This is the opportunity as an individual, and as a leader in the county, to influence the future course of the organization and possibly agriculture that will serve the needs of the farming community into the 21st century, according to the association. Attendance and active participation in Adams County is critical to the future success and growth of ACFA/PFA and farming in general.

Grassland FFA Hosts Animal Welfare Representative

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)— Ken Brandt, executive vice president of the Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA), will speak at the Grassland FFA Chapter meeting, Garden Spot High School, on Monday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m. His topic will be "PRUA: Organization and Mission."

PRUA is a federation of Pennsylvania agricultural, biomedical/veterinary research, and professional wildlife management organizations interested in the continued, responsible use of animals in Pennsylvania. Since its formation, PRUA has been actively encouraging the humane treatment of animals used in food, clothing, and apparel production and biomedical research as well as animals whose welfare is the responsibility of Pennsylvania's scientific wildlife management community.

Brandt, a former Lancaster County representative, headed up this organization since February 1991.

PRUA's new projects and initiative include a traveling exhibit highlighting the importance of animal use in today's society, a first and annual conference on responsible animal use, and their statewide venison-sharing project, Hunters Sharing the Harvest.

Hunters Sharing the Harvest is their largest and most extensive project to date. It is a cooperative effort by Pennsylvania's hunters, meat processors, local food banks, and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. It was spearheaded by PRUA to provide meat for Pennsylvania's local food banks. This past hunting season, the program generated more than 30,000 pounds of surplus venison for the needy in Pennsylvania.

Brandt is looking forward to continued growth this year because of increased public awareness.

"Our message — ensuring our quality of life through the responsible use of animals — is being accepted by a growing number of people," Brandt said. "This is important today when animal activists are gaining the spotlight and trying to dictate what people should eat, wear, or what activities they should not participate in because of purported cruelty."

For further information, call (717) 367-5223 or write to PRUA, Ken Brandt, P.O. Box 61, Elizabethtown, PA 17022.

Landis Bros. Inc. Receive Top John Deere Awards

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The 72-year-old Landis Bros. Inc., of Lancaster, recently became the recipient of two national awards from the John Deere Company because of its outstanding customer service and safety concern.

According to Herbert Noll, general manager of Landis Bros. Inc., the awards reflect the efforts and abilities of all of the company's employees, rather than just the customer service departments.

One award is called the Super Service Dealer Award and is given only to dealers who have met a strict set of guidelines and performance criteria which prove that they offer the best in customer relations, dealership image, product improvement program completion rate, parts and service department accountability, the proper use and storage of special tools, adequate and well-trained personnel, and a good advertising and promotion campaign.

To qualify, a dealership must meet 100 percent of more than 80 criteria.

It is the second year in a row that the dealership has won the award, which was created to reward the elite of the dealerships — those that best represent the perfect ideal John Deere dealership.

According to Don White, area service manager for John Deere's 17-state Northeast region, based out of Columbus, Ohio, the criteria for the award continue to change to reflect changes in customer needs and company expectations of dealers to fulfill those needs.

He said it reflects the attitude at Landis Bros. Inc. that if a company doesn't change to meet changing customer needs, a company will stagnate and not be ready to serve when called upon for help.

A second award was also presented to Landis Bros. Inc. for their efforts to install a free safety feature on older model John Deere tractors — those multi-cylinder tractors made since 1960.

Since June 1989, in order to help protect John Deere owners from accidents, a campaign has been ongoing to install a safety device over the starter solenoid. The device prevents owners from bypass starting their tractors.

Bypass starting tractors is unadvisable, since, on the older models, if the engine is in gear, the tractor will move and could possibly seriously injur someone.

Landis Bros. Inc. received the award because they exceeded their goal of installing the free safety devices for area tractor owners — their goal was to install 469. To date they have installed 534 bypass start prevention devices.

In a letter to Landis Bros. Inc., R.L. Avery, manager of product support from the John Deere Waterloo Works, in Iowa, wrote, "Your efforts and commitment to this program has allowed your dealership to reach its goal, helped make customers aware of the hazards associated with bypass starting and, more importantly, has helped reduce the number of bypass start related accidents."

Landis Bros. Inc. General Manager Noll said that the agricultural service department, which includes foreman Charles Miller and seven technicians, made the award possible, along with efforts by all employees to inform customers of the dangers of bypass starting.

In addition to an agricultural service department, Landis Bros. Inc. also has a complete lawn and garden shop with six employees

(Turn to Page A34)

Don White, area manager for John Deere, presents an award to Charles Miller, foreman of the Landis Bros. Inc. agricultural service department. White presented the award because of the success of Landis Bros. Inc. to install bypass start safety devices on older model tractors. Farm safety is always an issue of concern and the practice of bypassing the starter solenoid to start a tractor is extremely dangerous because the unmanned tractor could lurch foward and injur or kill. Landis Bros. Inc. was also named a John Deere Super Service Dealership for its all over excellence in customer service.

Charles Miller, foreman of the Landis Bros. Inc. agricultural service department, points to a safety device which had been installed over the electrical terminal end of a starter solenoide. Decals warning of the dangers of bypass starting are also attatched to the tractors so that anyone operating a tractor is aware and protected.

who also were responsible for Landis Bros. Inc. to win the awards.

In honor of their efforts, Landis Bros. Inc. on Wendesday held a luncheon for the employees, during which John Deere Area Service Manager White presented the awards.

Even though Landis Bros. Inc. has won the Bypass Start Campaign Recognition Award, it doesn't mean that the company has let down on trying to get all John Deere tractors in the area fitted with the free bypass start safety devices.

Anyone owning a John Deere tractor which doesn't have a protective device installed over the electrical terminal end of the starter solenoid should contact their nearest dealer.

Poultry Workshop On April 25

FOREST HILL, Md.— Harford County Extension Service will be sponsoring a Small Poultry Flock Husbandry Workshop on Saturday, April 25 at 8:30 a.m. at the Harford County Extension Office.

This workshop will feature topics that relate to backyard poultry producers and the commercial poultry marketer.

Dr. Charles Wabeck, extension specialist for poultry food products, will start off the discussion with comments on purchasing and selecting chicks and what to do when the birds arrive. Dicussing housing and equipment will be Mike Bazley, Baltimore County agricultural agent.

A major concern for many flock owners centers on disease management. Dr. Ed Mallinson, extension veterinarian, poultry, at the College of Veterinary Medicine at College Park, will discuss flock health and disease management. Of equal concern is the proper ration mix for the backyard and commercial flock, which will be addressed by Robert Halman, Harford County agricultural agent.

To round out the day's program, scheduled is Dianna Baldwin, agriculture inspector with egg marketing, food safety, and regulations.

The meeting is scheduled free of charge, but those who want to attend should call the extension office to preregister at (410) 838-6000, ext. 255.

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks Well-Kept Dairy Farms For 1992 Beautification Recognition Program

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COVINGTON (Tioga Co.)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is ready to receive applications for 1992. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has received great acceptance in the past and officers look forward to a good response again this year. "There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in past years, should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent in now to apply for the award. Deadline for applications is April 15, 1991. Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district. A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farmning to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time to apply for you and your farm to receive the coveted honor of Dairy of Distinction. This award is based on the concept that attractive farms enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encouraging public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Evelyn Lightfoote, 3053 Depew Road, Stanley, N.Y. 14561. Phone: (716) 526-6654. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: 201) 735-4989. In Pennsylvania, contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Bldg., 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingston, PA 18704.

Bush Valley Farm in Blair County and owned by Debra and Kenneth Bush family at Williamsburg is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. You are invited to send an application to enter the program for 1992.

Send Application By April 15

Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program

Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are: District 11, Leslie Firth; District 12, Wally Jackson; District 13, Susan DuJour; District 14, Janet and David Hileman; District 15, Norman Coons; District 16, Robert and Bernice Gable; District 17, Larue Thomas; District 18, Allen Roszel; District 19, Lisa Risser; and District 20, Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

THE FIRST DUAL-PURPOSE ALFALFA FOR HAYING AND GRAZING.

ALFALFA STANDS

(After 4 years of continuous grazing)

After 4 years of continuous grazing, Alfagraze maintained 75 to 80% of its original ground cover – 60% more than the other top hay varieties tested!

BEEF PRODUCERS

Last Call For Dairy Of Distinction

KINGSTON (Luzerne Co.) — Do you have a dairy farm that you are particularly proud to own? Would you like to be recognized for maintaining and attractive, well-kept farmstead? If so, this is the last week to send in your application for the Dairy of Distinction Award. Entries must be postmarked by Wednesday, April 15.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program (NEDFB) was first initiated in 1983 to recognize the hard work and dedication of dairy owner/operators who maintain attractive, well-kept farmsteads. Its purpose is twofold: to promote a positive dairy industry image, and to instill in consumers a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products.

Since consumers generally observe dairy farms as they drive by, farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. Also taken into consideration are the conditions of other aspects of the farm operation such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas and manure management. Roadside farm judging takes place in the month of May each year. Winners are judged annually to ensure that they continue to meet the standards of excellence set by the beautification program.

All active dairy farms in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey are eligible to apply for the award. Applications are available from the program secretary in your state and must be submitted by April 15 of each year. For more information about the NEDFBP, contact the following program secretaries: New York: Evelyn Lightfoote, 3053 Depew Road Stanley, NY 14561, 716-526-6654; Pennsylvania: Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. 239 Schuyler Ave., Box 5, Kingston, PA 18704, 717-283-2204; and New Jersey: August Knispel, RD#1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867, 201-735-4989.

The NEDFBP works in conjunction with the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., Cooperative Extension, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agri-businesses.

Show your commitment to your industry--become a Dairy of Distinction. An application blank appears on page A 35 of this issue.

For the John Hess Family

Farming And Making Ice Cream Go Together

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — As the weather turns warmer, John Hess not only thinks of plowing the 400 acres that he and his dad farm in Manheim but also of making ice cream.

As the Pennsylvania Farm Show champion ice cream maker, John wants to defend his title and warm weather is a great incentive to practice for the next contest.

John won the top prize of $300 for his raspberry ice cream made with his mother's homemade raspberry jam.

"I was looking in the refrigerator for something to add to the ice cream when I noticed a jar of the jam," John said. "And, I thought the jam would make good ice cream."

His first batch of raspberry ice cream was too sweet. It took three practices before he found the right proportions to convince family members that he had a possible winning recipe.

"My family likes eating my ice cream experiments and they help decide how I need to adjust the recipe," said John who is the son of Sue and John H. Hess Jr. He has a sister, Elizabeth, 17.

When preparing for the Farm Show ice cream contest, John was so intent on pasteurizing the eggs, that he forgot to dump in the light cream and the vanilla.

Despite the mistake, John won top prize for his ice cream.

"That was when I learned that my recipe tastes just as good without the cream and milk," said John.

It was the third contest for the 21-year-old, who previously won an electric White Mountain ice cream freezer for placing third in Farm Show competition the previous year. During Ag Progress Days, he also entered the contest, but did not place.

John thinks winning a prize more than compensates for his experiments in preparing for the contest.

"You can't lose," his mother agreed. "You always have the fun of eating it."

But one time, the family did not enjoy eating an experiment.

"I had tried making apple crisp ice cream, and the apple crisp turned hard as rock. It was a tooth breaker," Hess said.

John said that he was never able to perfect that recipe, but still tries to figure out ways to keep the apples from hardening when churned.

The Hesses have several ice cream freezers. While John prefers the electric one for home usage, in competition, he uses a 4-quart freezer with a hand churn. He believes a smaller, hand-churn freezer makes better ice cream.

John got his start in ice cream competition several years ago. That was when he was a state FFA officer. A meeting was held at his home for all the FFA state officers, and John made them homemade ice cream.

Later, one of the guests, vice president Tammy Balthazer, was asked to help oversee the ice cream churn-off at the Farm Show. She remembered John's homemade ice cream and encouraged him to enter it in competition. Although his freezer broke during the competition, John was able to earn a third prize and win a White Mountain ice cream freezer.

Since graduation, John is working in partnership with his dad on their 63-acre Manheim farm, where they have a farrow to finish hog operation. The Hesses have 60 to 70 sows.

"We don't believe in getting too large an operation. We think if we maintain a small sow herd, we can have almost as much profit as a larger operation without all the headaches," John said.

The Hesses rent about 400 acres on which they grow corn, tobacco, hay, soybeans, and small grains. Since 1983, the Hesses did not cultivate their crops, but this year, John said, "We're going back to cultivation. We have had trouble with weed control, especially dogbane, which herbicides won't kill. We think cultivation will also increase our yield," he said.

The Hesses raise their own corn for the hog operation. "But with last year's drought, we needed to buy corn and sell the hogs for 35 cents a pound. That's tough, but the farmer is the eternal optimist," John said with a smile.

"I have a really good working relationship with my dad. He is open-minded, listens to my ideas, and isn't afraid to let me try them," John said.

He especially enjoys growing tobacco and now plants eight acres of it.

During the winter months, father and son work on fixing up machinery. Two years ago, they built a shop for their mechanical and painting jobs.

"It's a good thing we enjoy fixing up old equipment because we can't afford new," John's dad said.

Recently, they fixed up the 1959 Edsel convertible that John's father had as a teen, and a Farmall H tractor.

The Hess family including Napoleon the dog enjoy eating homemade ice cream. Seated are parents Sue and John with children Elizabeth and John.

John and his dad both participated in FFA during their high school years and find the training beneficial in managing the farm.

As a lifetime alumni FFA member, John has earned his American Farmer Degree, has been vice president of the Eastern Region, a state FFA officer, and won many speaking contests culminating in first place during the state prepared public speaking contest in 1988. He has shown champion and reserve champion steers at the Manheim Farm Show and was president of the Manheim FFA Chapter.

"I wasn't outgoing until I was in FFA," John said. "Public speaking did not come naturally for me. It was something I really practiced."

He attributes his success to two great ag advisors. "Chuck Bechtold made me compete in public speaking. I won first place in the first contest that I entered. It really boosted my confidence. After that, I couldn't get enough of public speaking," John said.

When he first entered FFA, there were only four students in the program.

"I watched advisor Deb Seibert take a class of four and make it grow to the point that they now need to turn people down who want to enter the program," John said. "She was behind me all the way. And, I can't say enough about her."

Elizabeth, an FFA member at Manheim Central High School, is following her brother's example by competing in FFA speaking competitions. Recently, she placed third in the county speaking contest.

John's mother works as a guidance counselor at Manheim Central High School. Her job, her son said, caused him some distress as a student at the same school, because she got a daily report from his teachers. But the close contact forced him to do his best as a student and helped him to excel in his studies.

The Hesses, according to John, are a strong 4-H family because his parents met each other through 4-H.

"I like being brought up on the farm. It conveys a work ethic. It's the way that I'd like to raise my family some day," John said.

He and his dad are looking for an affordable farm to buy in the area so that John can live on his own farm. While they are looking for the farm, John is also making plans to attend auctioneering school. And, of course, he is making plans to win the next ice cream churn-off.

Here are the prize-winning recipes for the ice cream and the homemade jam.

RASPBERRY ICE CREAM

1 quart light cream or milk
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 cans evaporated milk
1½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla, optional
Skim milk, enough to half fill ice cream freezer
5 eggs
12- to 14-ounces black raspberry jam

Heat milk, and sugar almost to boiling point; slowly add beaten eggs.

Pour the mixture into the ice cream freezer. Add vanilla, condensed milk, and the light cream. Churn until ice cream is partially frozen. Add raspberry jam and finish churning.

BLACK RASPBERRY JAM

3 cups raspberries, put through food mill to remove seeds
5¼ cups sugar
1 box fruit pectin

Stir sugar into fruit and let stand 10 minutes. Mix ¾ cup water and one box fruit pectin in small saucepan. Bring to a full boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. At once stir pectin mixture into fruit. Stir 3 minutes.

Immediately ladle into containers. Leave ½-inch space on top. Wipe away spills. Cover with lids. Let stand at room temperature for 24 hours. Store jam in freezer.

TAKING TIME

by Rebecca Escott

Extension Home Economist

Home Ownership — Planning for the Unexpected

Well, we did it! My husband and I bought a home. We moved in January. (And for those of you who are wondering, the home survived the Valentine's Day sleepover just fine)! Now we are beginning to experience the financial obligations that come with buying a house.

April means taxes. We are itemizing for the first time. We received our first water and sewer bill. As we tackle some of the renovations and begin to furnish the rooms, we've recognized another challenge — budgeting for home repairs.

I learned for the first time how expensive floor lamps, padlocks, and gallons of paint are. Our dinner conversations often center on what project we will start next and what tools we will have to buy to do it. Even now we are trying to plan ahead for future costs.

We have several projects in mind — tiling the shower stall, putting new linoleum down in the kitchen, repairing the garage doors, redoing the attic insulation and adding vents. These are the planned projects. But what about the unexpected ones?

For them, we're maintaining a safety fund. Every family should have a safety fund to use for financial emergencies. It should equal three months of your family's income. You can start to build one by placing a small amount in a separate account each time you get paid. Keep the account separate, so that you don't normally pay bills from it. The amount that you save is less important than a commitment to put in a certain percentage each time you receive income.

Unexpected problems do happen. Although the timing is somewhat unpredictable, a family can plan for future home replacements. Your oven may be 10 years old. On average, ovens last 20 years. To plan ahead, you put aside a small amount of money from each pay check in anticipation of buying a new oven. The wall-to-wall carpeting in a living room will not last forever. How long do you think this rug will last? Check the cost of installing new carpeting. Divide the cost by the time. This will show you how much money you need to put away so that when the time comes, you won't be wiped out financially.

This planning is especially important for replacement of a furnace or a roof. If you regularly save money for these future maintenance projects and an unexpected problem arises — a leak in the roof, faulty house wiring is discovered — you will at least have some money to tap.

In a recent article in Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine, the author outlined some typical "life-expectancies" for house features and appliances. Exterior paint lasts about 5 years. Siding should last 40 years. A washer and dryer may operate for 13 years. You can plan to replace your dishwasher after 12 years. Hot water heaters last 10 years.

Take a look around your house. What is wearing out? Talk about how you can plan to replace the priority items as needed. How much money must you save by when?

Saving is a very important money management principle. And it is beneficial for children to see their parents saving and planning for future needs.

Guaranteed, we cannot anticipate all our future home repairs, but we can put into place a routine for setting aside money. In the meantime, the money can earn interest for us. This is far better than having to borrow when an emergency arises and pay interest to someone else.

Like I said, we're learning. I'm sure you and I could swap stories about how "things come up". But at least my husband and I are committed to a few principles: We plan not to take on more expenses than we can repay. We intend to tackle one project at a time if possible. And we don't want to spend down our entire savings to buy some things that are on our "want" list in case the unexpected happens.

Settling in to a home, like so many other life events takes time.

Answers About Insects

UNIVERSITY PARK, Centre Co. — As spring approaches and the weather warms, you may notice a few insects moving around inside your house.

In general, these insects are harmless to people and will do no damage.

The insects that become active indoors during the spring often have spent the winter in and around your home, seeking shelter from the weather under the siding and fascia of houses, in roof vents and near windows.

When temperatures rise and the sun warms the outside of the house, they become active and start searching for a way out. Inevitably, some mistakenly make their way into your living space.

Lady beetles are among insects that commonly overwinter in and around homes. The small, red beetles with black spots normally congregate in groups on rocks or logs where sunlight is present. Lady beetles will be attracted by the reflected energy of a nearby house, where they seek a sheltered spot.

Box elder bugs, named for their preference for the box elder maple tree, often turn up indoors. Box elder bugs are up to a half-inch long and black with red markings. Another insect partial to a specific variety of tree, the elm leaf beetle, also may find its way inside. These beetles are about a quarter-inch long and olive green with black stripes.

A type of fly you might find in your house in the winter and spring is the cluster fly. A little larger than the house fly, the cluster fly appears slow and sluggish and often is found in attics. The cluster fly's larvae live in and feed from earthworms. In the fall, adult cluster flies emerge from the ground and seek a protected place. Cluster flies are especially common near farms because the rich organic matter in the soil provides an ideal environment for earthworms.

Eliminating these insects once they are inside can be difficult and costly. But since they cause little or no harm the best strategy is to eliminate them as you find them, then try to close any exterior entry points you can locate.

Make sure windows and doors are screened and caulked. You also should screen roof or attic vents and caulk around soffit and fascia — make the exterior of the house as tight as possible. But if they're getting in through drain holes under your siding, there's not much you can do.

An insect that poses more of a threat to your property is the eastern subterranean termite. Colonies of these destructive insects live in the ground, surfacing to feed on cellulose such as soft wood. As they surface, they form a tunnel or tube made of mud to hold in moisture as they climb objects, such as the cinder-block foundations of houses.

Penn State Cooperative Extension offers a free publication about how to recognize and control the eastern subterranean termite. Penn State's Insect Identification Lab also can provide free infommation for homeowners with insect problems. To have an insect identified, or to receive a copy of the temlite publication, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

One of the most soothing, restful sounds to many people's ears is that of running water.

Gurgling, trickling, chattering streams of water form the soundtrack of some of my most pleasant childhood memories. The stream that ran through a neighbor's small, narrow meadow served as the focal point for endless hours of our outdoor play after school.

We built mini-dams of stones, dredged out channels through mud flats and pebble beaches and launches fleets of boats fashioned from dried sticks and leaves. Along this tiny pasture waterway we gathered handfuls of spring violets and tip-toed over thin, crystalline ice during winter freezes.

Summers, though, we steered pretty clear of the creek because of the tendency for water snakes to hover along its edges.

Our own meadow has likewise been blessed with a stream, flowing from the spring which bubbles up out of the ground on the edge of the lower lawn. Conservation improvements a few years ago rerouted the flow into the little pond, then through underground pipe for a few hundred yards below the farmstead.

Then it emerges to join with other springs along the way, gathering force and capacity as it flows. Groundhogs, muskrats, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, and a variety of birds thrive in the clumps and thickets along its banks.

Our children shaped many memories around our little "crick," even naming certain landmarks like Lizard Island and the Big Turn. Hours of fishing on the ponds made them Pied Pipers to the legion of cats waiting to feast on the overabundance of sunfish they caught on summer afternoons.

And the sound of gurgling, flowing water remains a most pleasant one to my ears.

With a few exceptions.

On returning from a quick errand on a recent afternoon, the bubbling gurgle of running water caught my attention. From the basement. A rapidly enlarging puddle on the floor of the laundry-sink-water heater area screamed that this running-water sound was not just a dripping spigot.

Indeed, a small stream appeared to be seeping from beneath the basement sink, meandering across the concrete floor and congregating in a puddle right in the doorway between the "mud" room and the laundry area. The fat sponge kept for car wash purposes went to work, soaking up a good half-gallon's worth of gurgling runoff.

In the brief time it took to put cows in the barn for evening chores, the puddle refilled and threatened to overflow into more distant corners. Milking time loomed, meaning a couple of hours at the barn - and The Farmer some 200 miles away retrieving specialized parts for an ailing silo unloader gearobx.

At the rate of flow, the basement stream, showed potential for inclusion in the Little Known Navigable Waterways of America list.

Though the origin of the flood was hidden, it sounded to be sourced in the hot water heater. Apparently our acidic water had again eaten through some fitting or plumbing-type hookup. But now to stem the tide until our resident fix-it trouble-shooter returned?

Some years ago, after a similar indoor flood incident, I had made a point of learning how to shut off the valve from the pump to the house - a simple twist of the wrist affair, once the location is known.

I twisted, the water slowed, and successive mop-ups reduced the puddle to a damp spot on the floor. Showers and dishwashing meant twisting the valve back on, making quick use of the running water, twisting the valve back off - and sponging up another half-gallon of runoff.

Twenty-four hours after our indoor spring erupted, the installation of a new hot water heater to replace the leak-infected old one dried up its source. The puddle disappeared, as did a portion of the checkbook balance.

I still love the sound of running water.

Outside. Where Mother Nature intended it.

Avoid After Lunch Slump

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — It's 2 p.m. and you know you shouldn't have ordered fettuccine Alfredo for lunch today. You've heard time and again that big meals cause drowsiness. Sure enough, not that you're back at your desk, you feel stuffed, your paperwork is beginning to blur, and you'd like nothing better than to take a nap.

Is it the lunch, or just the time of day? It is probably some of both, says Pat Kendall, Colorado State Cooperative Extension. Laboratory experiments show that alertness and the ability to perform tasks drop off during midafternoon, whether you eat lunch or not. On the other hand, studies also suggest that for some people, meals high in carbohydrates, such as pasta and bread, release certain chemicals in the brain called neutrotransmitters, which are thought to contribute to drowsiness.

Other factors, such as age and sleep habits, also contribute to midday drowsiness. Older adults seem more sensitive to postlunch tiredness than young adults. And, the person who enjoys a sound night's sleep is, of course, less likely to experience midday fatigue than the person who tosses and turns all night. While there may be no magical cure for afternoon drowsiness, certain eating habits can lead to fatigue over the long run. To avoid this, try the following.

- Don't skip meals. Food is fuel, which means that if you miss meals and wait until you're "starving" to eat, your body will literally run out of gas. If you want top energy throughout the day, try to eat regularly and in moderation.

- Don't expect sugary foods to give you an energy boost. The body responds to a large dose of sugar, as in a candy bar or soft drink, by releasing insulin, which in turn works to lower blood sugar. The result often leaves you more tired than you were before.

- Avoid the noontime cocktail. A bit of alcohol clearly leads to drowsiness and poor performance on the job.

- Eat a diet rich in iron. Chronic weariness is an earmark of a longstanding iron deficiency, a mineral many Americans, women in particular, don't get in sufficient amounts. That's why it's especially important to include iron-rich items like lean meat, legumes, dark green vegetables and iron-fortified cereals in your daily diet.

BUY EASTER EGGS EARLY

Whether you "hard-boil or "hard cook" eggs, they still have to be peeled for easy eating. Some people have difficulty doing this. There are several factors that can cause problems, making eggs hard to peel. For one thing, they may be too fresh.

For easy peeling an egg should be on the alkaline side. Over time, there is an exchange of gases which causes the albumen to become alkaline. If you plan on helping the Easter Bunny with coloring eggs, consider buying your eggs now. Keep them covered and cold. Leave them in the carton.

The way eggs are cooked can also lead to peeling problems. Here's a method developed by the Georgia Egg Board which is supposed to be fool proof. First, prick the large end of each egg with a pin or needle. This will break the bubble of air in there, which otherwise will expand when the egg is heated and can crack the shell.

Place the eggs in a large saucepan and cover with cold water. Limit the number of eggs to be cooked to 12 at one time. Set on high heat and bring just to the boiling point. Remove the pan from the heat, cover and allow to set exactly 17 minutes.

When the timing is up transfer the eggs to a large bowl of ice and water. Chill exactly two minutes while bringing the cooking water to a boil again. After chilling, transfer the eggs (six at one time) to the boiling water; let boil for 10 seconds, and then return them to the ice water.

The ice water shrinks the body of the egg from the membrane that encloses it, the 10-second boil expands the shell from the shrunken egg body. Returning the eggs to the ice water speeds the cooling process and prevents the yolk from darkening A natural chemical reaction takes place when eggs are cooked. The iron from the yolk combines with sulphur from the white. This reaction is accelerated by heat. Therefore, eggs cooked at too high a temperature may end up with grayish yolks, a greenish ring in the white next to the yolk, and a tough, rubbery white. Cooking for too long a time can also result in the same reaction.

When properly refrigerated, hard-cooked eggs will last for one month. However, it is best to use them within one week. If the eggs do have a green discoloration, don't despair, they are still safe to eat. Eggs that crack during cooking are still good, but should be used within a couple of days or they may dry out.

Ask 'Eggsperts' About Easter Eggs

My children love to color hard-cooked Easter eggs. How can I be sure we decorate them safely?

At Easter time, eggs are handled a great deal more than usual. Each handling occasion provides an opportunity for the eggs to come into contact with bacteria. So, be sure to follow these tips:

* Wash your hands thoroughly before handling the eggs at every step including cooking, cooling, dying and hiding. If you will not be coloring your eggs right after cooking them, store them in their cartons in your refrigerator.

* Do not color or hide cracked eggs.

* When coloring the eggs, use water warmer than the eggs and refrigerate them in their cartons right after coloring. If you want to eat your colored eggs later, be sure to use food coloring or specially made food-grade egg dyes.

* Refrigerate your eggs again after they have been hidden and founds. Do not eat cracked eggs or eggs that have been out of refrigeration for more than 2 hours. If you plan to use hard-cooked eggs as a centerpiece or other decoration and they will be out of refrigeration for many hours or several days, cook extra eggs for eating and discard the eggs that have been left out as a decoration.

Can I cook with the eggs I've blown out of shells for decorating?

The edible contents blown out of eggshells can be used in any recipe where yolks and whites are mixed and thoroughly cooked. Use the contents immediately after they have been blown-out or freeze them. Most baked dishes such as casseroles, custards, quiches, cakes or breads are good uses for blown-out eggs.

How long can hard cooked eggs be kept?

Since hard-cooking removes the protective coating from the shells, hard-cooked eggs should be refrigerated in their shells in their cartons as soon as they have been cooled. Use within 1 week.

What's the best way of "Hard-Cooking" eggs?

Place eggs in a single layer in a saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand covered in hot water about 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or place them in ice water until completely cooled.

To remove shell, crack it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, staring at large end. Hold egg under cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

What can I do with all the extra hard-cooked eggs after Easter?

After you have made egg salad, deviled eggs, pickled eggs or creamed eggs try the following recipe.

Golden Broccoli Tuna Scallop

1 can (3½ oz.) water-packed tuna
1 jar (2 oz.) sliced mushrooms
1 jar (2 oz.) chopped pimiento
Milk
4 hard-cooked eggs, wedged
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon garlic powder
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli
2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese

Drain tuna, mushrooms and pimiento into liquid measuring cup. Add milk to liquids to make ¾ cup. Set liquids aside. Place drained ingredients and eggs in a one and one-half quart casserole. Set aside.

In medium saucepan stir together flour, garlic powder and 2 tablespoons of the reserved liquids until smooth. Stir in remaining liquids. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and is smooth and thickened. Add broccoli. Cover. Reduce heat to low. Cook, stirring occasionally, until broccoli is thawed. Pour into casserole.

Stir together crumbs and cheese. Evenly sprinkle over casserole. Bake in preheated 350 degree F. oven until hot and bubbly, about 20 minutes.

In a small mixer bowl, combine evaporated milk and pudding mix, beat 2 minutes. Set aside. In large bowl, beat cream cheese until light. In large bowl, beat cream cheese until light. Gradually add lemonade concentrate, continue beating until smooth, light, and fluffy for 3 to 4 minutes. Fold pudding mixture into cream cheese mixture, blending thoroughly. Pour filling into graham cracker crust. Chill 3 to 4 hours or overnight. Top with whipped cream.

Tomato Pasta

4 large eggs
1½ tablespoons tomato paste
3 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
½ cup semolina flour
⅛ teaspoon salt

Combine dry ingredients and make a well in the center. Blend together eggs and tomato paste, pour into well made with dry ingredients.

Combine ingredients until well combined. Knead for 5 minutes, adding more flour if needed. Let stand 1 hour, covered.

Divide into 4 pieces and roll thin or use pasta machine. Cut in strands and let dry for at least 10 minutes before cooking.

Wholesome Whole Wheat Noodles

2 cups whole wheat flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 egg yolks
½ cup water, approximate

Combine flour and salt in a large bowl. Combine oil, egg yolks, and water in another bowl. Pour liquid mixture over flour mixture and work with fingers to form a soft dough. Add 1 to 2 tablespoons more water if needed.

Transfer the dough onto a lightly floured board and knead 10 minutes. Cover the dough with a bowl and let rest for 1 hour. Divide the dough into four pieces. Run through a pasta machine or roll into a thin dough and cut into noodles. Dry for 1 hour before using. Makes about 1 pound.

Mexicans Prefer U.S. Beef

DENVER — U.S. beef emerged a clear winner in taste tests with Mexican consumers in a recently completed product preference study, conducted by the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) with beef checkoff dollars.

In general, consumers preferred the appearance of Mexican or U.S. select beef, while they clearly preferred the taste of U.S. choice, followed by U.S. select beef, with Mexican beef coming in third in taste.

"Mexican consumers are used to the look of domestic beef and don't understand what marbling is or that it adds to the flavor and tenderness of the product. This research shows that U.S. beef is superior in taste, but getting upper-class Mexicans to buy it will require aggressive education and promotion campaigns," said Homero Recio, USMEF Western Hemisphere director.

The study compared Mexican, U.S. select and U.S. choice beef. Cuts tested for taste and appearance included top sirloins, New York strips and clod steaks. Rib eyes and top rounds were tested only for appearance. The study also showed that beef is an important part of affluent Mexicans' regular diets. of those surveyed, 82 percent had eaten high quality beef in the last week and nearly half of those questioned had eaten beef in the past 24 hours.

Likewise, their experience with imported beef was positive. Eighty-four percent recalled being "very satisfied" with the imported beef they had recently eaten. U.S. beef was perceived to be the best by 22 percent of respondents, 57 percent said they felt the best beef came from Argentina and Mexican beef was rated best by only 10 percent. Ironically, Argentina is not allowed to export beef to Mexico in either fresh or frozen form, due to foot-and- mouth disease. Recio explains that most of the product marketed in Argentine steak houses is likely U.S. choice beef.

Another conclusion drawn from the study is that U.S. beef has the attributes desired by Mexican consumers. They listed tenderness, flavor and leanness, as the three most important factors of quality beef.

With these study findings in hand, USMEF's Mexico City office will move aggressively to conduct in-store demonstrations and offer samples to Mexican shoppers. USMEF will also work with retailers to provide point-of-sale materials on U.S. grain-fed beef, as well as recipes, designed specifically for the Mexican market.

U.S. beef, veal and variety meat exports to Mexico in 1991 totaled 106,500 metric tons and were valued at $235 million. 1991 exports increased 91 percent by volume and 109 percent by value over 1990.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

For the past few days, I've been sorting through boxes of old papers. Actually, they are simply read and then put back where they came from and not thrown away.

There are so many legal papers like wills, deeds and surveys of farms long ago. Many papers are just trivia such as my mother's notes on how my sister talked — "lal-a-la" was water, "a-pooh" was apple and "a-ha" was coffee with "potsy" being cabbage. My two younger sisters were a year apart and seemed to have their own language.

There was even a paper on which the police billed my grandfather for $3.50 when they phoned six cities to try and find his stolen car. I'm sure their methods are quite different today.

I came across a roll of yellowed paper on which my mother had written supersitions. I counted and there were some 90 of them of which at least half were preached to me.

You've probably heard the most common ones but a few odd ones were "Nails of a child must be chewed off not cut until one year of age so that it will be honest."

"If you stumble coming up steps, you will not be married for seven years." What happens if you are already married?

Others were "If a lover leaves at the strike of twelve, he will not return."

And, "Love Letters must not be burned or love will die."

"If one plants lilies of the valley, he will die before the end of the year." This did not happen to me!

"To cure a visitor of homesickness, spit in his soup unknown to him."

"Toothpicks made from a tree struck by lightning will cure a toothache, but will also cause the tooth to decay."

Finally one for spring, "Do not talk while planting onions or they will go to seed."

These are all interesting as long as one does not take them for gospel truth.

Don't Be Fooled By Fat Substitute

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Don't fool yourself into thinking that just because you buy low-fat mayonnaise, salad dressing, and margarine you're eating a healthier, lower-fat diet. You may not be, says Christina Stark, a nutritionist with Cornell Cooperative Extension.

"Many people think that all they have to do to reduce their consumption of fat is to buy a few low-fat food products," she says, "but that won't make much of a difference unless they also control the amount of fat they eat in other foods and truly substitute the low-fat product for its higher-fat version."

Nutritionists are concerned that consumers may use low-fat foods, usually those made with a fat substitute, as an excuse to eat even more higher-fat foods. Take the person who thinks eating a piece of fat-free coffee cake is like eating minus 130 calories. That person then feels justified in loading up on a rich dessert later in the day.

"This person hasn't eaten minus anything," notes Stark. "Nevertheless, people may rationalize that they deserve more calories so they reward themselves with something high in fat."

Feeling free to overeat is another potential pitfall of low-fat foods. "People often feel that they can eat two pieces of coffee cake or have two big bowls of ice cream instead of just one as long as they are the fat-free versions," says Stark. So they may not end up eating fewer calories after all.

While foods made with fat substitutes haven't been around long enough for researchers to know whether they will reduce the total fat in the American diet, a look at what happened to sugar and sweetener consumption after the introduction of sugar substitutes gives a clue: instead of going down, sugar and sweetener intake went up! Today we eat slightly more calorie-containing sweeteners per person than we did beefore artificial sweeteners were introduced.

How can this be when people seem much more conscious of the amount of sugar they eat? "It's true that people are buying fewer bags of sugar than they used to," Stark says. "Less is being used at the table and fewer people bake these days, but manufacturers still add sugar or other sweeteners such as corn syrup to processed foods, and since we eat more processed foods we get the sugar anyway."

The same can hold true with fats — many are hidden in products that we don't necessarily think of as fattening. Some crackers, for example, can be very high in fat.

A recent Department of Agriculture study found that people in lower income groups are eating as many fatty and fried foods as ever, while those in higher income groups are substituting pizza, cheese, and frozen desserts for red meats, hence still maintaining a high fat intake.

Too, a major source of fat in our diet, namely meat, cannot easily be made in low-fat versions. "Through breeding and feeding practices, the fat content of meat can be lowered," says Stark, "but manufacturers can't use fat substitutes to make a fat-free steak."

Since low-fat snacks and desserts aren't the mainstays of a healthful well-balanced diet, nutritionists are also concerned that people will fill up on low-fat snack foods, leaving little room for more nutritious fare. They could end up with plenty of calories but too few nutrients. "We would still like to see people eating more carrot sticks, not more low-fat potato chips," Stark says.

All About A Radiosonde

Linda Williams
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — What would you do if you were walking through the woods or down a country lane and you saw a bright orange parachute?

Well, if you do, chances are, it will be carrying a radiosonde which belongs to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. This is the part of the United States Department of Commerce that predicts the nation's weather.

Pick it up and you will find directions to mail it back to the National Weather Service postage free.

Each year, the weather service sends 70,000 of these balloons into the air. They fly at 17 to 20 miles above the earth.

Those found in Pennsylvania would probably be released from Pittsburgh, if the winds are coming from the west. If the wind is coming from the east or south, the radiosonde would probably have been launched from Washington, D.C.

A radiosonde is composed of sensors which are attached to a radio transmitter and assembled in a lightweight box.

The box is then attached to a rubber balloon which is filled with gas such as helium or hydrogen (both are lighter than air). A bright orange parachute is also attached.

As the radiosondes fly over the earth, they detect such things as barometric pressure, humidity, wind, or temperature. They send messages back to earth to the people who predict the weather.

When the balloon, which keeps the radiosondes afloat, reaches a height of 100,000 feet, it will burst. At this time, the parachute brings it safely and slowly to the ground.

Those people who find and return the radiosondes are saving the taxpayers a lot of money.

It costs approximately $60 to build each radiosonde. There are 70,000 released each year. This means the total cost would be $4,200,000. About 1/2 of this or $2,100,000 could be saved if all of the radiosondes were returned.

Many of them, however, drop into the mountains or treetops where they are never seen.

In Bedford, Cory McConnell was hiking with his grandparents in the woods near their home when he saw an orange parachute in the treetops.

With the help of several long tree limbs, he and his grandparents were able to pull the radiosonde to the ground. The parachute, however, stayed stuck in the tree.

And, that is what often happens. The parachutes stay stuck in the treetops or fall into the mountains or on ridges where they are never found.

Most of the people who find the radiosondes are farmers, construction workers, or hikers who are out of doors. Sometimes, however, they might drop right in the middle of a town or city. When the balloon reaches 100,000 feet, it will burst, no matter where it is.

It takes about two days for a balloon to travel from Pittsburgh to Bedford, a distance of about 150 miles.

This is what a radiosonde looks like. Directions are attached for mailing the radiosonde back to the National Weather Service.

Meet Fulton County Farm Women President

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MCCONNELLSBURG (Fulton Co.) — Pamela Glenn heads the Fulton County Society of Farm Women.

Pamela, her husband Richard, and sons, Jeffrey 14, and Tommy, 11, live on a dairy farm in McConnellsburg.

Jeffrey is in partnership with his two brothers. Together they milk 155 head and farm 600 acres of corn, oats, wheat, and alfalfa.

"I became a Farm Women because I married a farmer," Pamela said.

Her mother-in-law told her about the organization and when a new group was formed in October 1977, Pamela became a charter member. The group now has 15 members. The other society in the county has 17 members. After serving as vice president, secretary, and treasurer of both the local and the county societies, Pamela now is on her second year as county president.

The purpose of the Farm Women Society is to contribute to the power and influence of the farm home; to contribute to the community activity of farm women; to develop leadership and to promote better living and working conditions in the farm homes.

"I most enjoy going to other members' homes," Pamela said. "We go to a different home each month. It's always interesting to hear speakers on different topics."

Every fall, the society holds an auction where each member brings a craft to donate for bidding. The money collected is given to charity such as buying toys and food baskets to be distributed by Children's Services.

This past year, Fulton County Society of Farm Women sponsored a candidate for Fulton County Fair Queen.

Social activities of the Fulton Societies include a visit to see a play at the Totem Pole, each summer. Families enjoy the annual ice cream social where several freezers of homemade ice cream are made and served with cakes and cookies.

Pamela also is a member of the Fulton County Milk Promotion Board that promotes dairy products in schools. The organization donated a milk shake machine to the school cafeteria.

"Milkshake sales are very successful," Pamela said.

About 15 men and women are members of the Milk Promotion Board hand out cheese as part of the dairy promotion at local stores.

Pamela is a member of the Green Hills Sewing Club for several years. Members get together to make quilts for charity. In the fall, the club makes apple butter in big copper kettles. The apple butter is sold and the profits used for local needy families.

In her sparetime, Pamela enjoys needlepoint and cross stitching.

Candy Making Fun, Economical, Easy

Debbie Wenger of Quarryville believes that candy making is a great opportunity to unleash creativity. She paints white chocolate using cake coloring and brushes.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

"Why buy candy when you can make it?" Debbie Wenger asks.

She answers her own question by stating: "It's better, cheaper, and it's fun."

After making 100 pounds of chocolate Easter candy, Debbie still hasn't exhausted the creativity she said is possible in candy making.

"You can paint white chocolate in different colors and you can dip almost everything imaginable like pineapple, bananas, caramels, mints, pretzels, strawberries, and nuts in chocolate," she said.

Debbie uses Wilbur's coating chocolate that does not need to have anything added to it. It can be melted and poured into molds or be used as a dipping chocolate.

It's the white chocolate that offers Debbie the most creative opportunities.

"Before you pour the chocolate into the mold, you paint the mold with the colors you want," Debbie said.

She uses cake decorating colors to color the molded white chocolate with pastel accents.

"I don't like to eat commercial white chocolate," Debbie said, "but I like the Nestle's white chocolate that I use for making candy."

Debbie cautions that chocolate, especially white chocolate, can become too old and will not melt.

"If white chocolate has a yellow tint, it is too old," she said. "Chocolate keeps a long time if it is stored in a cool, dry place — not the freezer because the chocolate gets moisture in it," she said.

The best time of the year to make chocolate, according to Debbie, is September through April.

"If the humidity is too high or it's warm, chocolate doesn't mold nice. It doesn't have a nice gloss," Debbie said.

Through trial and error Debbie has learned to avoid melting chocolate when a cupboard is above it. "The chocolate steams and forms condensation on the cupboard; the water droplets fall into the chocolate and then the chocolate doesn't harden," Debbie said.

Debbie melts the chocolate in two Corning Ware pans set in an electric skillet with water in the bottom. The skillet is kept at a low temperature and the water level must be maintained.

Occasionally, Debbie uses the microwave to melt the chocolate. Although it is an easy method, Debbie warns that chocolate must be watched carefully, for it will burn quickly in a microwave.

"It doesn't take much chocolate to make a box of candy and in no time at all, you have a nice present," Debbie said.

Much of Debbie's candy is donated to the Lancaster Christian school where the Wenger's children attend. Her candy is sold in the school's gift shop as a fund raiser. Most popular are colored chocolate lollipops in dinosaur shapes or in hearts for Valentine's Day.

Although Debbie sells some candy to word-of-mouth customers, she said, "Usually what I sell only covers the cost of the candy I donate."

In addition to making candy for the family, gifts, and donations, Debbie has taught several candy-making classes to Farm Women groups and other ladies' groups.

Debbie's love for candy making was kindled about 10 years ago when her Tupperware dealer demonstrated candy making.

Debbie tried it, loved it, and later took several candy making classes offered by the Lancaster County Extension.

Debbie collects candy molds.

"Don't ask me how many molds I have," she said. "I can't count that high."

Debbie is married to Robert Wenger of Quarryville. The Wengers have three children: Greg, 17; Julie, 15; and Randy, 14. The Wengers have 250 acres, 45 milking cows, 56 heifers, 4 rabbits, 22 chickens, and a Vietnamese potbelly pig.

Debbie helps on the farm when needed, usually when the children leave for school.

The whole Wenger family participates in 4-H. Robert leads a dairy 4-H club, Debbie teaches cake decorating and basketry with daughter Julie as a teen leader.

Debbie is a charter member of Lancaster Farm Women Society 31. She likes to do counted cross-stitch in her spare time. She also volunteers her time to make baskets for the school gift shop. She meets with other volunteers to make baskets every Tuesday in September, October, and November and every other Tuesday during the remaining months except for December. "Last year, we made 400 baskets and sold them at the school gift shop," Debbie said.

"If I get a chance, I like to read, especially historical romance," said Debbie, who has a collection of Grace Livingston Hill books.

The Wenger family, except for hubby Robert, are seldom tempted by chocolate cravings, but if they do indulge, they have their own distinct likes. Mother and son Greg prefer chocolate cover caramels; daughter Julie prefers peanut butter cups; son Randy likes the chocolate covered mints.

"And Robert will eat any kind of food or candy. It doesn't matter to him," Debbie said.

Here is Debbie's favorite recipe for peanut butter cups. She found the recipe in Lancaster Farming many years ago.

PEANUT BUTTER MIXTURE

18-ounce jar Jiff peanut butter
1 stick butter, melted
1 pound confectioners' sugar

Mix together and knead until smooth.

For peanut butter cups: pour a thin layer of melted chocolate into petit paper cups. Put in a dab of the peanut butter mixture. Cover with melted chocolate.

Peanut butter eggs: form peanut butter mixture into egg shapes and paint with melted chocolate or dip into melted chocolate.

Somerset Teen Sews All Her Own Clothing

Gay N. Brownlee
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Since the days when at age five she sewed on paper and sewed on buttons, Julia Keafer, 18, has progressed a long way. She is the youngest of three girls born to Henry and Shirley Keafer and was initiated into the art of stitchery by her mother.

On such a foundation began young Julia's ascent to become a skilled seamstress whose closets now bulge with an assortment of her own tailored clothing. There are slacks, dresses, suits, gowns, and her prize-winning wool coat.

The reed-slender Somerset Area High School senior and nine-year 4-H member says that commercially manufactured garments never fit her properly. Shopping trips usually result in a futile search, such as the time she failed to find what she was looking for in the malls of two cities. Well, if one can't find the right-size clothing while shopping, one can always change gears and shop instead for suitable material and make your own. That's what she did.

"I'm such a perfectionist," admits Julia, with an air of helplessness. "One time I did a seam 20 times before I got it right."

Of her seven 4-H sewing projects Julia recalls the one which left her the most frustrated. After getting a perfect score, because of her young age, she could compete no further than the regionals. "I was little," she says, "but I wanted to go on."

In 1991 she competed at the state level in the clothing and textiles category. The same year she placed second in the state with her coat in the Make It Yourself With Wool contest. It marked her third year participating in the wool promotion event.

With a hectic roster of activities in her life, Julia's calendar is chocked full of engagements. And these necessitate having appropriate attire. One wonders where all those clothes go. Does she discard them? No, she doesn't.

"I have a blue dress that I made six years ago," she says. "I (emphasis on the I) haven't given any away," she continues loud enough for her mother in the next room to overhear. (One is instantly suspicious that perhaps Mother is guilty of something here.)

Julia says that although her schedule is very demanding, when she sews she does so in small-time installments, rather than for long periods. And she has a rule for herself not to sew clothes for friends although many of them have approached her to do so.

Besides a talent for sewing, Julia is an eight-year student of the violin and with the stringed instrument will be touring Europe this summer with a group of musicians. They are from the eastern United States and will be conducted by a leader from Hershey. Traveling with the American Music Abroad Orchestra, Julia will have the honor of performing in concerts in countries such as France, Germany, Austria, Belgium and Switzerland.

Certainly a new wardrobe is essential for such a journey. Consulting with her mother, Julia has planned it with selections that take into account the need for style and wearability, comfort and ease of care. Many of the items are simply patterned skirts, she says.

As a contestant for winning the title of Pennsylvania Maple Queen on March 21, Julia had created her own teal gown to wear in the evening gown competition. With 13 other young talented women, Julia had earlier survived the audition of 44 entries. The gown had puffed sleeves, a sequined bodice and a chiffon overskirt.

The overskirt was a headache to work with, she says and tells how frustrated she got working with it. "I would roll it up in a ball and throw it in a corner. I would quit and come back later," she says.

One of her sisters dealt with sewing frustrations in that manner and Julia picked up the habit from observing her. She says the only thing you can do is walk away from it and come back to it later.

The five judges named Julia Keafer the new Maple Queen. It is her duty to represent the Pennsylvania maple sugar industry during the 45th Maple Festival held in Meyersdale this April and to fulfill a year of obligations by appearing at many functions as the official spokesperson for the industry.

She had won the difficult on-stage interview award with her spontaneous answers to two soul-searching questions before an overflowing audience. She had performed a violin medley which she calls "Millionaire's Hoedown," during the talent competition.

So with her new responsibility as Queen Maple XLV, Julia finds herself with yet another need for special attire to wear, like the frothy white gown she is currently making for the queen's ball and grand feature parade.

Julia has an affinity with farming. She has an uncle who is a farmer and allows her to have 4-H animal projects there for nine years. She's raised sheep, pigs, and a steer all of which did very well at the county fair and farm show.

Ironically, each animal was given a name designating it as royalty. There was Queen Elizabeth for instance, and King William. Julia even dubbed her uncle's farm as Royalty Ranch not realizing then that one day she would be called Queen Julia.

Early in her life Julia says she had taken piano lessons for two years. They didn't go well for her. So her mother issued an ultimatum. "Play the piano or play the violin." Julia says she opted for the violin and now declares, "I love it."

She is also on her school's forensics team as a member of the humorous drama squad. "I'm in forensics because I like to talk a lot," she says laughing. With comedy interpretation, she says you don't sit and worry about what you will say like the kids who formally debate and argue.

Georgia Institute of Technology has accepted Julia for it's fall term. She wants to study architectural engineering which is a five-year program that includes studies in France during the fourth year.

Farmers Build Homes, Churches For Mexican

The Fellowship of Christian Farmers build houses and churches in Mexico under the direction of Ed Williamson, former Nebraska farmer. Williamson has started 32 churches and a Bible College in Mexico with the help of volunteer work crusades. The group would like other farmers to spend nine days with a participating work crusade. Participants range from 20 to 72 years of age.

LYKENS (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers from eight states traveled recently to Mexico to help with construction of homes and churches.

In the past three years, members from Fellowship of Christian Farmers LTD have sent 143 farmers and 20 women to Mexico for nine-day work crusades.

Julia Holmes, a spokesperson for the organization, said that the opportunity to go on a work crusade is open to anyone with a desire, a willing heart and hands to help. No formal work experience is required and all ages can be used in the manual labor projects.

A fee of about $300 is charged to go on a crusade, which starts in San Antonio. The fee covers most meals, a place to put a sleeping bag, and most of the materials required for the building project.

Berks County Needs Dairy Princess Candidates

MOHRSVILLE (Berks Co.) — The search is on in Berks County for energetic and vivacious, dairy-minded females willing to promote "Nature's most perfect refreshment - MILK". The Berks County Dairy Promotion Committee in conjunction with the Berks County Dairy Farmers Association is looking for girls to compete in the annual Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant, May 9 at the Berks County Agricultural Center, Leesport. The girls will vie for the honor of representing the county's dairy farmers in schools, businesses, and many association meetings on the county, state, and national level.

All contestants can look forward to participating in educational seminars and demonstrations as the date for the pageant approaches. A "Mary Kay Makeup and Makeover" is planned for all the princess candidates as well as nutrition and dairy education sessions. Candidates will develop poise, a greater insight into the dairy industry, and many personal contacts that will serve to benefit them later in life.

The winner of the title will be eligible for an incentive payment, mileage and supply reimbursements, and also attend many more seminars and meetings during her reign. A major part of her duties will be the promotional appearances and skits in schools, meetings, and businesses throughout the county. In September, all county princesses compete for the state title.

To be eligible to compete, the girl must be 16 years of age by July 1, 1992, but not older than 24 years of age by December 31, 1992. She must own dairy animals, or be employed by the dairy industry, or be a daughter of a dairy farmer or of someone employed in a dairy related industry.

If you know of anyone who could represent the county's dairy farmers, contact Debbie Dietrich, 652 Penn Ave., Apt. 25, Sinking Spring, Pa. 19608, or phone: (215)-678-7534 right away.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 14

Lancaster Society 14 of Farm Women met on February 12, at the guest home operated by Donna and Jack Coleman.

The brillant color of red was everywhere in celebration of both Valentine's and President's Days. Those who did not wear red were fined 25 cents. Only one fine was collected.

Roll call was answered by showing a special Valentine.

The sewing committee showed the quilt they finished for Jean Thomas.

Pampers, a pet lamb wearing Pampers and owned by the Colemans, joined the Farm Women as a guest. Pampers is part of the Coleman's petting zoo.

Miriam Leaman conducted a spelling bee, which proved that Serena Groff, a senior high school teacher, was the top speller of the group. Member Janet Leaman showed her stamp collection and gave an enthusiastic report on how it is a ministry. She has a market for them and the proceeds go to mission work. She gave instructions on what to save and how to save stamps to be used for this ministry.

On March 11, Ellen Newswanger opened her home to members. Helen Breneman read poems and a scripture. President Ellen Newswanger asked members to think about the society's motto, "For Happiness," and suggest a project to bring happiness to someone.

The title, "Watchanacallits," had members curious as to what Christie Rhoades would present for the program. Members were amazed by the crafts and creativity she displayed by using old watch parts. She also used old buttons to make unique jewelry.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

As spring approaches, it is time to decide what vegetables we should plant. Maybe a few new recipes will help in the decision. Usually when I plant vegetables, such as zucchini, I have them "coming out of my ears." What to do with those skinny green things is sometimes a big problem. But if I had enough recipes, I just might be able to use more of the plentiful harvest.

For those who like to freeze fresh vegetables while they are in season, highest in quality and lowest in price, the microwave oven is a great help. It's especially useful to home gardeners, since vegetable crops do not ripen uniformly. You can pick vegetables as they reach the peak of flavor, even if you have only a few servings. Minutes after the vegetables are picked, you'll have them blanched and ready to freeze, without spending all day in a steamy kitchen, handling heavy pots of boiling water.

How To Blanch And Freeze Vegetables

Prepare vegetables by washing, peeling, slicing or dicing as you would for regular cooking. Measure 1 quart or 1 pound of vegetables into the recommended casserole. Add water, as given in the chart below. DO NOT ADD SALT. Cover the casserole. Set power at HIGH. Microwave for half the minimum time and stir. Recover the casserole and microwave for second half of minimum time. Stir again. Check for doneness. Vegetables should have an evenly bright color throughout. If all vegetables are not evenly bright, recover the casserole and cook to maximum time. Drain vegetables. Plunge vegetables into ice water immediately to prevent further cooking. Spread them on paper towels and blot with additional towels to absorb excess moisture. Package in freezing containers or pouches. Label packages with type of vegetables, amount and date. Freeze. To loose pack vegetables in larger containers or bags, spread individual pieces on a cookie sheet. Place in freezer until vegetables are frozen; then place loose pieces in containers. Seal, label and freeze.

Power Level Is High For:

Asparagus - 1 pound cut into 1 to 2 inch pieces - 1/4 cup water - Microwave 3 to 4 minutes.

Beans - 1 pound, 1/2 cup water - microwave 4 to 6 minutes.

Broccoli - 1 bunch, 1/2 cup water, microwave 4 to 5 1/2 minutes.

Carrots - 1 pound, sliced, 1/4 cup water, microwave 4 to 6 minutes.

Cauliflower - 1 head, cut into flowerettes, 1/2 cup water, microwave 4 to 5 1/2 minutes.

Onions - 4 medium, 1/2 cup water, microwave 3 to 4 1/2 minutes.

Peas - 2 pounds, shelled, 1/4 cup water, microwave 3 1/2 to 5 minutes.

Spinach - 1 pound washed, NO WATER, microwave 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 minutes.

Squash - 1 pound sliced or cubed, 1/4 cup water, microwave 3 to 4 1/2 minutes.

Zucchini - 1 pound sliced or cubed, 1/4 cup water, microwave 3 to 4 1/2 minutes.

Zippy Zucchini

4 cups zucchini, cut into chunks
1/2 medium onion, thinly sliced
4 eggs, beaten
1 1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 jar (2 oz) pimiento, drained
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Place zucchini and onion in 10x6x2-inch dish. Cover with plastic wrap, turning one edge back slightly to vent. Microwave at HIGH 7 minutes. Drain.

In large bowl, mix together eggs, cheese, pimiento, salt and pepper. Add zucchini and onions, stirring well. Grease dish in which vegetables were cooked. Pour mixture into dish and cover with paper towel. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH 8 to 10 minutes, stirring and removing paper towel after 4 minutes, until center is set. Makes 4 servings.

Squash Combo

1 pound of zucchini squash
1 pound of yellow squash
1 jar (2 oz.) pimiento
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons butter

Wash squash and cut into chunks, alternating yellow and zucchini into 2 quart casserole. Arrange undrained pimiento strips over top. Add water and dot with butter.

Insert temperature probe so that tip rests on center bottom of dish. Cover with plastic wrap, arranging loosely around probe to vent. Attach cable end at receptacle. Microwave at HIGH. Set temp, set 200. When oven signals, let squash stand, covered, about 10 minutes before serving. Toss to mix, if desired. Makes about 8 servings. (On models not equipped with probe, use minimum microwave time and check for doneness.

Sunny Glazed Carrots

1 pound or about 8 medium carrots
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup brown sugar (packed)
2 tablespoons cold water
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 cup pecans, coarsely chopped (optional)

Wash and cut carrots into 1/2 inch diagonal slices. Place in 1 quart casserole with butter and brown sugar. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 9 to 11 minutes, stirring after 5 minutes. Mix water and cornstarch until smooth. Stir into carrot mixture. Add pecans. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 2 to 4 minutes, until thickened. Stir before serving. Makes 4 servings. To double this recipe, use 2 quart casserole and double the ingredients. Microwave the carrots 15 minutes, stirring after 7 minutes. Add thickening and microwave 4 to 6 minutes more.

Friendship Gardens Aid Russian Families

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — The Friendship Gardens project, in conjunction with Delaware Valley College, Burpee Seed Company, Rodale Press Inc., and First Products Corporation, has come up with a successful plan to help feed the citizens of the Russian Federation. The project has also gained political backing from Congressman Peter Kostmeyer and Dr. Logvin A. Overchuck, the agricultural attache for the Embassy of the Russian Federation in Washington, D.C., and will make its first delivery in early April.

By sending the Friendship Garden kits, containing 10 envelopes of vegetable seeds and instructions on growing procedures, Russian citizens will be able to produce up to 1,000 pounds of fresh vegetables to help ease the demand for food during these hard economic times in the former Soviet Republics.

The ideal of the Friendship Gardens was conceived by Mr. James Cantrill, who became acquainted with individuals from Russia by hosting study groups visiting the Philadelphia area for training programs. Cantrill, along with Dr. John Avery, Chairman of Delaware Valley College's Agribusiness Department, began to search for donors to help sponsor the project, with Delaware Valley College playing a major role in facilitating the project.

Rodale Press, Inc. has donated $3,500 to sponsor the first shipment of gardens, that were packaged at Delaware Valley College, which will be sent on April 4. Mr. George Devault of Rodale Press will hand deliver the packages to Russia. Additional packages will be sent to Russia as sponsorship monies become available.

Overchuk said, "We support the idea and are sure the Russian people will accept it with much gratitude. Many people have garden plots and are in need of seeds."

Anyone wishing to join the Friendship Gardens project and sponsor a garden are urged to help. Individual sponsorships are $15 per garden, while corporate sponsorships are being accepted for $100 and up. If you wish to contribute towards the goal of 10,000 gardens, please contact either Dr. Avery at (215) 345-1500 ext. 2328 or Mr. Cantrill at (215) 483-6898.

Join Weight Reduction Program

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN (Schuylkill Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension's newest weight loss and maintenance program "My New Weigh of Life" (formerly "Safe Slimming") is designed to help people take the first step to permanent weight loss. Participants will learn to make food choices that they can live with for a lifetime. There are no forbidden foods, no endless dieting, and no intense exercise programs.

The program will be conducted at the Miners Memorial Medical Center (Formerly Coaldale State General Hospital), beginning on April 20, at 6:30 p.m., Karan Heflefinger, certified home economist will teach the program series.

My New Weigh of Life will be conducted for 12 consecutive weeks and provide information on current weight loss research in an upbeat, positive, non-threatening and supportive atmosphere. # Food For Profit Seminar

YORK (York Co.) — Whether it's growing and drying herbs, baking bread and cakes, or packaging gourmet dinners for one, food related businesses are becoming increasingly popular as a way to earn a living (or additional income). To help current or future bakery owners, jelly makers, and other food business owners learn more about the business aspects of their enterprise, Cooperative Extension will offer Food for Profit on April 28, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Penn State York Campus.

This seminar will provide the information necessary to start and run a small food product business, especially directed to individuals who will be making and packaging their products for resale (through grocery stores, farm markets, or restaurants). Sessions dealing with business planning, legal requirements, marketing and pricing help the new business person lay the ground for a long, productive business experience. Registration will be open till April 22. A $20 fee covers lunch, breaks and all materials. For more information contact Winifred McGee at the Lebanon County Extension Office, 270-4391.

Adams Co. Farmers Form Ag Promotion Group

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Adams County Farmers' Association is sponsoring a new committee to fill a great need and desire within the county to educate people about agriculture, to promote the agricultural industry, and to do so within a flexible structure involving those who may or may not be members of the organization.

"The purpose of this committee, called the 'promotion and education' committee, is to tell the real story of agriculture in a positive manner," said ACFA president Dave Wenk. "The committee will promote the Adams County Farmers' Association along with its counterparts, the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association and the American Farm Bureau to farmers and non-farmers alike. "We want to promote agriculture; to educate farmers regarding top issues of today: farm safety, current affairs, improvement of health and well being, etc.; as well as to educate non-farmers on the same aspects."

The structure of the P&E Committee will consist of anyone who is interested in agriculture — one who has enough experience in the local association to know how it operates and anyone who is committed to agriculture and has a positive outlook. The committee will consist of approximately six to eight couples within the county who will be appointed by president Wenk of the association and approved by the board of directors.

"This committee will be a think tank; brainstorm," said Wenk.

Projects to be implemented will reflect the needs of the county.

Anyone interested or has further suggestions should contact president Dave Wenk, (717) 677-9553 or secretary Pam Ketterman, (717) 337-2845 for additional information.

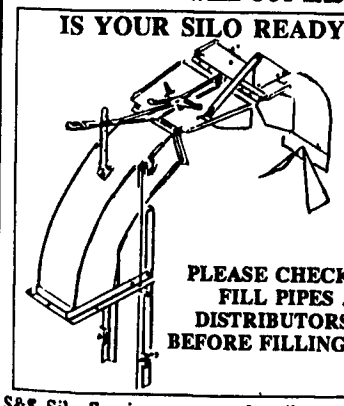
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Mexico Wants U.S. Pork, Lamb

DENVER, Col. — According to a recently-completed product preference study, U.S. pork and lamb are competitive in Mexico with pork and lamb from competing countries. Conducted by the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF), the study asked upper and middle income Mexican consumers to rate U.S. and competing products by appearance and taste. The study consisted of 26 focus groups in major Mexican cities.

U.S. ham slices were rated as superior in appearance and taste by 88 percent and 79 percent, respectively, as compared with Mexican ham. U.S. loin chops were rated as superior in both appearance and taste. In the category of hot dogs, Mexican product rated slightly higher in appearance. In the taste test Mexican and U.S. product scored equally.

U.S. lamb was the overwhelming winner as compared with lamb from New Zealand. In the appearance test, 84 percent of respondents preferred U.S. lamb chops over New Zealand chops, while 86 percent rated U.S. leg steaks as superior in appearance to the competition. In the blind taste test, 93 percent preferred U.S. lamb chops, and U.S. leg steaks were favored four to one. Mexican lamb was not tested, as the amount produced is negligible, and lamb was only tested with the upper income group.

"While U.S. pork has a good reputation in Mexico (25 percent of respondents said the U.S. was the best supplier of pork), this study has helped identify specific cuts that will sell well, as well as to provide information that will assist USMEF in setting specific marketing strategies for U.S. pork in the Mexican market. Lamb from New Zealand and Australia is perceived to be superior, in spite of this study, which shows that U.S. lamb is clearly preferred. It's a matter of education and getting consumers to try our product," said Recio.

The study also showed the importance of meat in the daily diet of upscale Mexican consumers. Fifty percent of those surveyed said they had eaten pork chops or pork roasts within the past week. Eleven percent had eaten imported pork at home and three percent had eaten imported pork in a restaurant in the last three months. During the past week, 19 percent of the upper income consumers surveyed said they had eaten lamb. The survey reveals that upper income Mexicans would be receptive to increasing the role of lamb in their routine diets.

The upper income level of Mexicans is composed of executives and professionals. They have no problem purchasing imported meat on a regular basis. The middle income group, consisting of white collar workers, prefers U.S. meat products and is able to purchase these products occasionally. The middle income group's ability to purchase U.S. meat is expected to improve along with Mexico's growing economy, said Recio.

The Mexican consumer's preference for chilled product, both pork and lamb, was evident in the study. The U.S.' proximity to Mexico gives U.S. lamb suppliers a distinct advantage over New Zealand and Australian suppliers, pointed out Recio.

In 1991 Mexico imported 92,226 metric tons, valued at $115 million, of U.S. pork and pork variety meats. 1991 U.S. lamb, mutton and variety meat exports to Mexico totaled 3,712 metric tons or $6.4 million.

USMEF is an international trade organization responsible for developing foreign markets for U.S. red meat products. Headquartered in Denver, USMEF also has offices in Tokyo, Mexico City, Seoul, Taipei, Hong Kong, Singapore and Hamburg.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Pa. FFA'er Wins Environmental Essay Contest

Our environment ranks as a top concern of America's youth, according to Chad Hyatt, 17, of Berlin, state winner in FFA New Horizons magazine's "Up With Agriculture" Writing Contest.

Hyatt receives $50 as a state winner. The chapter FFA advisor is Doyle E. Paul.

FFA members from around the nation wrote about what they can do to preserve the environment. National first place winner Sarah Grant, 15, of Grass Valley, Calif., believes she must "help children understand the value of every living creature on earth. I propose that from kindergarten through the twelfth grade, a class exclusively about the environment be taught alongside reading and arithmetic. In so doing, children will be educated from an early age to realize the importance of a clean, healthy land."

Angela Stump, 17, national second place winner of Blue Rapids, Kan., explains that her role in preserving the environment is critical to everyone's survival. "I must learn to conserve, recycle, and restore our natural resources," she wrote. "Then I must educate and persuade others to do the same. If not, the eternal flames of our environment will be extinguished."

Third place national winner, Jeffrey Missling, 21, of Jeffers, Minn., wrote, "I must educate others about the agricultural products we purchase, market, and consume. I must identify, where possible, products that have a positive impact on waste disposal. I must also make every possible effort to promote the sale of environmentally friendly consumer foods."

"Think Globally, Act Locally," is the theme of national fourth place winner Brett M. Birchmeier's essay. The 18-year-old from Chesaning, Michigan, wrote, ". . . we must recognize the global impact of our local actions. Preserving the environment can not be done by the national government or by big industries alone; it must be done on an individual level. Each individual must take responsibility in reducing waste, reusing resources, and recycling."

The "Up With Agriculture" Writing Contest is sponsored for "FFA New Horizons" magazine as a special project of the FFA Foundation by ICI Seeds. FFA New Horizons is the official publication for FFA members who are students of agricultural education.

ANTIBIOTICS IN POULTRY

Donald L. Singletary
Dept. of Veterinary Science

As most poultry producers already know, nitrofuran products (NF180, NF2, amifur, and furox) are no longer available for the treatment of their flocks. These products were particularly helpful in starting chicks and poults and in controlling infections caused by E. coli and Salmonella.

The nitrofurans have been added to a slowly growing list of poultry products which have been removed from the market. Previously, PenStrept and neoterra, combination antibiotics for water use, were taken off the market. Some sulfa drugs have also been removed and others are being reviewed for removal.

With no blackhead treatment product available, turkey producers are concerned what they'll do if they have an outbreak.

No single reason exists for the loss of these products. There are a wide variety of reasons these products were taken off the market.

Although a number of popular and useful products are no longer available, the poultry producer still has some antibiotics which he/she can use. Let's look at some of them and review their important features.

Aureomycin, terramycin, and tetracycline are closely related broad-spectrum antibiotics for use in chickens and turkeys, and can be administered in either the feed or water (except tetracycline, which is for use in water only). Terramycin is also available as an injectable.

All of these drugs are readily absorbed from the bird's gut. At low use levels, they are used for growth promotion, improvement of efficiency, and the prevention of disease. At higher use levels, they are used for the treatment of disease problems (enteritis, airsacculitis, fowl cholera, etc.).

Withdrawal times follow: aureomycin — 500 gm level in feed — 1 day, in water — 1 day, lower levels — none; terramycin — injectable — 5 days, in water — 5 days, feed — variable, follow label instructions; and tetracycline — in water — 4 days.

Treatment levels of these products are generally not approved for laying birds producing eggs for human consumption. However, a water formulation of terramycin is available for egg-producing birds (both chickens and turkeys) for increasing and maintaining egg production. It can be used in breeding flocks to improve fertility, hatchability, viability of chicks, and to improve shell quality. Terramycin is often combined with neomycin for use in the field.

Gallimycin is effective against Gram-positive organisms and Pasteurella infections. It is readily absorbed and products are available for both feed and water use. It is approved for chickens and turkeys. The following withdrawal times apply: water — 1 day, in chicken feed, low level use — 1 day, high level use — 2 days not for use in feed for laying hens producing eggs for human consumption; turkeys — none. Gallimycin is not for use in turkeys over 12 weeks of age.

Important: Always read the label. It will give withdrawal times and correct age and type of birds for which the product is approved.

Additional antibiotics and products still available for use by the poultry producer will be discussed in future articles.

Ag Exports Increase

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Companies in branded programs sponsored by state regional trade groups increased their exports of food products by $573 million in 1990-1991, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"These increases were more than 22 times the amount of federal matching funds allocated to the participating companies," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker.

According to Walker, another $100 million of exports resulted from an international food show sponsored by the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture in 1991.

These expanded exports created 36,000 new jobs and increased federal tax revenues by $125 million, yielding a five-to-one return on U.S. government investments in the Market Promotion Program.

Walker pointed out that most of the companies in the program are small. The average Market Promotion Program allocation per company was $46,000 in 1991.

"In these tough economic times, we need to maintain programs that contribute to our trade balance and create domestic jobs," said Walker.

For more information, contact Robert L. Walker, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (410) 841-5880.

FARM MANAGEMENT

MANAGING FARM FAMILY FINANCES

Patricia L. Powley
MEd, CHE, CFP
Extension Home Economist

Do you find it difficult to know how much to spend each month for family living needs?

Many farm families do. For many farmers, income is both irregular and unpredictable.

Although living standards on the farm have become more and more comparable to those nonfarm families, there are some important differences in managing farm family finances.

Differences: Income is irregular and uncertain; housing expense is often low; food expenditures may be lower than for nonfarm families; insurance and health costs may be higher; farm and home compete for surplus cash; household expenses are small compared to farm expenses; and business items are tax deductible.

Cash Flow: What are the major sources of cash income in your farming operation? When are they most likely to occur?

With this information, you can begin making a cash flow budget for your farm. Chances are you have done this either on you own or with a farm management agent.

This cash flow budget has helped you add your best estimate of possible selling prices to project cash inflows and income. Subtracting your best estimates of costs for feed, seed, fuel, chemicals, hired machinery and labor, livestock, repairs, taxes, and other expenses has told you how much will be left over for paying debts and family living expenses.

It also has helped to estimate how much short-term borrowing will be needed during periods of little or no income.

Household Budgets: Have you ever made a household spending plan? A careful estimate of how mush is needed each month for family necessities is important but not easy. Projections of expenditures for food, clothing, personal items, health, education, home maintenance and utilities, education, transportation, and giving can best be made from your own past records.

How much do you estimate your family spends each month on these items? During which months is spending greater than the average?

Were you unsure about some of your answers? Projection and control of family living expenses is difficult without records of past spending habits.

Many farm record books contain sections for recording living expenses. It is extremely important for the whole family to help keep these records of daily living expenses so that a more accurate figure can be used to determine the actual amount that the household budget requires.

Adjustments: You may need to adjust last year's expenses due to changes in the family situation, such as a child entering school or a debt repaid. Adjust for inflation by increasing the previous year's expenditures by a projected rate.

Separate Accounts: Do you have separate bank accounts for family and business expenditures?

Budgeting, financial record keeping, and income tax preparation are all simpler if a farm business bank account is set up separately from the family account. Money can be transferred from the business account to the household account according to your spending plan. Household expenditures can be monitored easily.

When no farm income is anticipated for several months, it may be useful to place some funds for future living expenses in a separate savings account. Gradually transfer them to the home account to discourage unnecessary spending.

Setting Goals: Most families have a want list for such things as a family vacation, home improvement, or a recreational vehicle. Make a list of some possible extra expenditures you might make for the household, individual family members, or the farm enterprise, if income permits. Estimate the cost. Decide what priority you'd give this expenditure. Compare your ideas with those of other family members.

Establish a System: Does your family have a system to decide how income will be divided between farm and family expenditures? Or does this present a conflict each time farm income is received?

Deciding how to allocate income between farm and home before it is received can prevent conflict.

Here are some examples: Earmark a fixed percentage of all farm sales for family use. Transfer a fixed amount to the household account each month for basic necessities.

At the end of the year, allow a certain proportion of net farm income (10 to 15 percent, for example) for nonessential household expenditures during the following year. Use you list of priorities as a guide.

Where off-farm income is available, it may all be channeled into the family expenditure account. Or certain enterprises on the farm, such as the sale of dairy calves or extra crops, may be designated for extra family living income.

Summary: Carefully budget farm income, farm expenses, and household expenditures. Verify budgets through actual records. Separating farm and home bank accounts makes this easier. Set realistic spending goals and priorities. Develop a system for allocating income and use it.

Multifoliate Alfalfa Resists Disease

DEKALB, Ill.— Farmers who intend to plant alfalfa this year will want to consider a new multifoliate variety with multiple disease resistance from Dekalb Plant Genetics.

DK133 offers resistance to the five major economic alfalfa diseases, including anthracnose, bacterial wilt, Fusarium wilt, Phytophthora root rot, and Verticillium wilt. It also has resistance to Aphanomyces. This winter-hardy variety rated 24 on the 25-point Wisconsin disease resistance index.

"This high-yielding, disease resistant variety will meet the needs of farmers throughout the northern two-thirds of the U.S. whether they use alfalfa or hay, haylage, greenchop, or dehy production," said Jim Rich, Dekalb's alfalfa product manager. "DK133 will be an excellent earlier-flowering companion to DK122 and DK125."

TIME TO MAKE MONEY WITH BEEF COWS

The next month or so will be one of the most critical times in determining whether a cow-calf operator will have the opportunity to make money with his cows.

This is the breeding season for most of these herds, and it will largely determine if there will be anything to sell in 1993.

The four most important factors in cow-calf production are the number of cows that wean a calf, the weaning weight, the price of weaned calves, and the annual cost of the cow. Of these, the most important is whether the cow gets bred, has a live calf, and nurses that calf to weaning. The first step is, of course, getting her bred.

Three keys to improving reproductive efficiency are fertility of the cow, fertility of the bull, and the nutritional resources to the herd.

First, the cow. In order to maintain an optimum productive cycle of having the cow calve every 12 months, she has about 84 days to rebreed after calving. This implies she must recover from the birth, lactate, and start cycling again in a very short period of time.

This situation is compounded in the young cow that may also still be growing. In a study of more than 12,000 cows in Montana, the most important reason a cow did not wean a calf was because she failed to breed in a designated breeding season.

In fact, non-pregnant cows represented almost twice as many failures as all other causes combined. Some of the reasons for this include cows that calve late and do not have sufficient time to start cycling again, the nutritional status of the herd (especially in young cows that do not begin to gain weight before the breeding season starts), and cow age (particularly those over 10 years old).

The second factor is the the fertility status of the bull. It is imperative the bull be able to successfully breed the cows when they are in estrus. Some of the reasons for failure to settle the cows include physiological infertility, injuries or illness, and insufficient numbers of bulls.

Bulls can be infertile for a number of reasons, but usually it is because of age (usually too young) or an environmental factor such as excessive heat, illness, or malnutrition.

The best way to test fertility is to have bulls undergo a breeding soundness exam prior to turning them out. However, we have discovered that, unless you buy a bull at a test station, we are not aware of any veterinarians in Pennsylvania that can provide this test.

The next best chance you have with a young bull is to have a scrotal circumference measurement. As a yearling, a bull should be 32 cm in circumference to indicate potential fertility. Bulls with smaller scrotal size may indeed be fertile, but their ability to settle every cow at estrus may be restricted. Bulls should be observed during the breeding season to be sure they are finding and breeding the cows as they cycle.

More than once I have heard about the failure caused by a bull that was injured but "I didn't know about it until it was too late and what calves I got were born late in the year." Bulls that become ill and run a fever for a couple of days can be marginally or fully infertile for up to 6 weeks after the illness.

There should also be sufficient "bull power." While most herds in Pennsylvania need only a single bull, introduction of a yearling bull to a 25-cow herd will result in fewer calves compared to using an older bull in the herd.

In general, a yearling bull can handle about 10-20 cows, a 2-year-old bull can breed 20-30 cows, and mature bull can breed 30-40 cows without stretching the bull beyond his capacity.

Finally, nutrition is the key to all of the above. It is a fact that cows in poor shape at calving, younger cows, and heavier-milking cows will not breed back as easily.

Know the feed requirements of the cows in the herd and feed them accordingly. Younger cows with first or second calves cannot meet their needs if the are fed just like the mature cows, and you can expect some reproductive failures if you try to feed them too little.

Most cows require only about 1 pound of actual protein daily during gestation, but that requirement can double or triple after calving, depending on the milking ability of the cow. For example, an all-silage diet will be fine for the average mature cow, but it will not provide enough protein for the heavy milker and certainly will not provide enough for the first-calf heifer.

Feed quality is, of course, an essential part of a successful nutrition and breeding program. A rose is not a rose where hay, haylage and silage is concerned, so forage analysis may be necessary. Contact your local extension office if you would like to review the nutritional status of your herd.

The "To Do" List for this month:

- Get the bull in breeding shape by feeding and watching him.
- Turn the bull out with the yearlings and 2-year-olds a couple of weeks ahead of the rest of the herd.
- Get some extra groceries in the heifers and cows that are still losing weight after they calved.
- Tag the calves, and castrate and implant those destined to be steers.
- Check the magnesium and selenium status of the mineral mix.
- Buy your dewormers and fly tags and worm the cows about two weeks ahead of turnout to grass.
- Get the pastures fertilized for the spring applications.
- Check the fence, gates, and water sources for the summer.
- Get the lepto-vibrio shots in the cows before the breeding season.

Publication Examines Trickle Irrigation

ITHACA, N.Y. — As the summer heats up and rainfall slackens, water quickly evaporates from the soil. Without irrigation, the danger of crop damage from lack of moisture runs high.

Trickle (also called drip) irrigation answers irrigation needs by providing plants with the precise amount of water they require, slowly and frequently.

Anyone designing, installing, or maintaining a trickle irrigation system will find help in "Trickle Irrigation in the Eastern United States" (NRAES-4).

This 24-page publication points out the advantages and disadvantages of trickle irrigation. Although the Eastern United States generally receives adequate rainfall, too little rain may fall during critical stages of plant growth.

Trickle irrigation ensures that plants have the necessary amount of moisture at all times. Trickle systems require less water, less energy, and less labor than other irrigation systems, and can deliver fertilizers to plants directly and efficiently.

The first section of the booklet explores the relationships between plants, soil, and water. The second section discusses the components of a trickle system — filters, pumps, emitters, and controls — regarding how they work and how to choose the right ones. In the third section, readers will find specific guidelines for irrigating tree fruits, small fruits and vegetables, as well as greenhouse and nursery crops. The final section thoroughly covers the details of planning a trickle system, highlighting the information a designer needs, and giving formulas for determining water requirements, number of emitters, and irrigation time. Two appendices provide technical details about designing laterals and submains, and preventing line clogging.

"Trickle Irrigation in the Eastern United States" (NRAES-4) costs $3.75; quantity discounts are available. Postage and handling are included for U.S. orders only. Orders from outside the U.S. must be prepaid in U.S. funds. Make check payable to NRAES. Order from the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES), 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Cooperative Extension, Ithaca, NY 14853, (607) 255-7654.

Stoltzfus Spreaders' high capacity poultry litter spreader (PLS) features a load capacity of 16,000 pounds and has a 30-inch wide drag chain that will move a high volume of poultry litter, damp stockpiled lime, fertilizer, shavings, or compost.

Poultry Litter Spreader Has Wide Drag Chain

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.)— Stoltzfus Spreaders announces their newest product, the high capacity poultry litter spreader (PLS).

Featuring a load capacity of 16,000 pounds, this quality machine has a 30-inch wide drag chain that will move a high volume of poultry litter, damp stockpiled lime, fertilizer, shavings, or compost.

Dual spinner distributors provide a wide, uniform spread pattern of up to 40 feet, and the optional hydraulic rear gate allows the application rate to be adjusted from the cab.

The large flotation tires (19Lx16.1) allow all-season spreading, and, because the body chain is PTO—powered, press wheel slippage is no problem. "Cor-Ten" steel construction provides exceptional corrosion resistance. Suspension is walking-beam type — a rugged, dependable system.

The PLS is available with larger tires (21.5Lx16.1), wide track axles for hillsides, and surge brakes (two or four wheel). Hydraulic gate openers, a 1,000 rpm PTO setup, and a low rate kit for fertilizer provide increased flexibility. Stainless steel hoppers and tarps are available. The PLS can be ordered in truck-mounted sizes.

The PLS has a hopper measuring 7' wide by 14' long. Overall unit height is 7'3". Hopper capacity (without extension) is 300 cubic feet at 240 bushels. The wheel track is 83" on center.

Further information is available from Stoltzfus Spreaders, Morgan Way, P.O. Box 527, Morgantown, PA 19543, (215) 286-5146.

Agway Campaign Wins Marketing Awards

Seven of the 12 awards won by Agway and Eric Mower and Associates were for first place. Campaigns for Agway Country Feeds and the "Agway, That's Who" series had the best showing.

The awards recognized the best print advertisements, brochures, and radio and television ads.

NAMA represents organizations that market to farmers and sell agricultural products. The NAMA competition was open to marketers from eight states.

Carlyle & Martin Earns Safety Recognition

HAGERSTOWN, Md.— Carlyle & Martin, Inc. recently earned recognition from John Deere for achieving its goal in John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program.

Harold Showalter, co-owner, accepted the award on behalf of Carlyle & Martin, Inc. from Dave Kastler, area service manager of John Deere, during a presentation ceremony at the dealership recently.

"Customer safety is very important to us here at Carlyle & Martin, Inc. We believe that any safety program offered by John Deere will benefit our farmer customer such as the Bypass Start Safety Program," said Showalter.

The program is part of John Deere's effort to educate customers about the danger of bypass starting. Bypass starting is a general term for any starting method that bypasses the safety features designed into the starting system or departs from the proper starting procedure. Examples include shorting across the starter solenoid with a metal object and starting the tractor with a key from the ground.

"Bypass starting is a dangerous practice because it places the operator on the ground in front of a drive wheel of the tractor. If the operator bypass starts the tractor while it's in gear, he will likely be run over," said Showalter.

Showalter said that bypass starting is not unique to a particular brand or type of tractor. He urged all tractor operators to follow the correct starting procedure outlined in the operator's manual and never attempt to bypass start a tractor.

John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program involves most John Deere tractors built since 1960. The program calls for John Deere dealers to install a safety-start kit (starter solenoid cover and bypass start warning decal) on every qualifying tractor in their service areas and inspect the tractor's starting system. There is no charge to the customer for the kit, installation, inspection, or travel time. Those dealers who completed 100% of their assignments by a certain date were recognized by John Deere for their efforts.

"There still may be some tractors or owners we have been unable to identify," said Showalter. "If this is the case, we urge these individuals to call the dealership immediately so we can schedule a technician to install a free safety-start kit and conduct a free inspection of the starting system." The dealership telephone number is (301) 733-1873.

Tedder Uses Two Rotors

GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M&W Gear Company announces the addition of a new 10-foot pull-type tedder to the M&W hay product line.

The new model HT210 tedder uses two rotors with six double tines per rotor to quickly separate and spread the crop for faster drying. Only a 20 horsepower tractor equipped with 540 RPM PTO drive is required.

A slip clutch protects the driveline while big 16"x6.50x8" tires roll over ruts and holes. Adjustments can be made in seconds without tools, and maintenance is minimal.

Rubber Accelerator Rolls Propel Crop Evenly

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — White has returned combines to its farm-equipment line with features that will make farmers take notice.

The Class V 2500 and the Class VI 2600 new White rotary combines deliver the higher yields, the tough, efficient power, and the comfort today's agribusinesses demand.

The new combine series is based on a greatly simplified design for easy servicing and exceptional reliability, said John M. Shumejda, senior vice president of operations for AGCO, the White parent company.

"AGCO wanted to give its White dealers a better combine than they ever had before, and we have met our goal," he said. "These combines are state-of-the-art machines that harvest more crop with less damage. Even though they have plenty of power, the engine is simple and easily maintained. And we've given the farmer a cab that makes harvesting more comfortable than ever before."

White's Natural Flow Harvesting System increases per-acre yield. Exclusive rubber accelerator rolls propel the crop evenly, reducing the loss that often occurs, especially during hillside harvesting, in the pre-cleaning stage.

Liquid-cooled Cummins engines, the same engines that power the White Workhorse tractors, drive the new White Class V2500 and Class VI 2600 combines. Exclusive rubber accelerator rolls propel the crop evenly, reducing the loss that often occurs, especially during hillside harvesting, in the pre-cleaning stage.

Liquid-cooled Cummins engines, the same engines that power the White Workhorse tractors, drive the 2500 and 2600 combines.

"These engines are fuel-efficient. They're also easy to maintain because they have fewer moving parts than comparable engines," Shumejda said. "And when the engines do need service, it will be done quickly and efficiently, due to the White dealers' years of experience with the Workhorse engines."

Belts and hoses are designed to be changed quickly and easily. They also offer greater service access and have fewer lubrication points than many competitive models on the market.

The extra-quiet cab is equipped with a wide instructor seat, a new air-ride operator's seat that automatically adjusts to the operator's weight, tilt-telescoping steering wheel, and a digital readout module on the steering column that allows the operator to check engine, ground or cylinder speeds or fuel level without looking away from the crop.

A 62-square foot expanse of glass, no front-corner pillars to obstruct the view of the header, and full-length side glass give the operator a complete view. The glass is solar-controlled and tinted.

The long feeder housing improves visibility behind the header, making it easier to set the header to the proper cutting height.

Agway First At Cooperative Information Fair

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway Inc. has placed first overall in an annual national competition recognizing the best farm marketing programs.

Agway received a total of 18 awards from the Cooperative Information Fair, placing the organization ahead of all other farm cooperatives.

The competition, which attracts the nation's major agricultural marketing organizations, included entries from Land 'O Lakes, Ocean Spray Cranberries, Sunkist Growers, Dairylea, and Blue Diamond Growers.

Of the awards received by Agway, four were for first place. Eleven of Agway's awards were for campaigns and materials created for the company by Eric Mower and Associates Inc., the Syracuse-headquartered marketing communications agency.

"This is a major awards competition for companies that are involved in agriculture and farm marketing," said Charles F. Saul, Agway general manager. "Agway's 91,000 farmer members expect their cooperative's marketing communication program to work as hard as they do. It's gratifying to see the Agway name come out on top when you consider the others who entered the Cooperative Information Fair."

Dauphin District Announces Awards

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Each year the Dauphin County Conservation District recognizes individuals and groups who make significant contributions to the conservation of Dauphin County's natural resources. Four awards were recently presented at the conservation district's annual banquet.

The Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award was presented to Gerald Wiest of Lykens Township. Gerald has incorporated many Best Management Practices (BMPs) into his 275-acre farm operation. He has installed a waste storage structure to help manage nutrients produced by his herd of 50 sows.

To reduce soil erosion and nutrient runoff, Wiest has constructed terraces, diversions, and waterways, and employs stripcropping, contour farming, and no-till planting on both owned and rented ground. Furthermore, he contributes his time to the community. Having been actively involved with the conservation district for many years, he has also served as an ASCS community committeeman and is a past member of the cooperative extension board of directors.

An award for outstanding environmental educator goes to Kathryn Armstrong, earth science teacher at Linglestown Junior High School, for the development and coordination of an environmental education program involving not only her students, but the entire student body, staff, the business community and other schools in the district. The program is a year in preparation and culminates in a week-long Earth Fair each spring.

Armstrong's students conduct a recycling program for the school all year and contribute the money they earn to appropriate charities. Impressive environmental science projects are displayed in the school gymnasium. Students, visitors, and staff sign and honor "Make-A-Difference" pledges, recognizing the impact individuals can make. Additionally, an assembly is held featuring conservation professionals who are then available to students throughout the day for questions.

For conservation awareness in municipal government, Lower Paxton Township is recognized for its leadership role in land use planning to control pollution, preserve stable ecosystems, and enhance soil and water resources. The township has incorporated steep slope conservation areas into their zoning codes and has developed an erosion and sediment pollution control ordinance. They have actively supported storm water management studies of Paxton Creek and Spring Creek West and they maintain an environmental advisory committee which meets regularly and advises the supervisors on environmental issues. Lower Paxton Township officials have been consistent in their conservation programs for many years.

Finally, the Dauphin County Federation of Sportmen's Clubs has been named the outstanding conservation organization. It is comprised of 11 local clubs representing 30,00 individuals committed to preserving natural resources.

In addition to conservation enhancement proiects, such as joining with the Pennsylvania Fish Commission in float stocking of trout, this organization directs a major portion of its efforts to education. They conduct a week-long junior conservation camp each summer, providing scholarships for students ages 13 to 17, and they sponsor a conservation poster contest available to all county students through the schools' art departments. The federation also maintains a close working relationship with other county, state, and federal natural resource agencies.

All award recipients were recognized at the Dauphin County Conservation District's annual spring banquet. The honorees also received Commonwealth Citations from Senator John Shumaker.

Report Indicates Low U.S. Oat Plantings

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The recent United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) march planting intentions report signals the potential for acres planted to oats in 1992 to be the lowest in history.

The USDA report indicates that U.S. farmers will plant 8.337 million acres of oats in 1992; of these, 4.905 million acres are intended for harvest as grain. This compares to a 1991 total of 8.654 million acres planted and 4.8 million acres harvested.

The 10-year averages for crop years 1981 through 1990 were 14.27 million acres planted and 7.74 million acres harvested. The USDA separates oats planted for harvest from total plantings because many producers plant oats for non-grain purposes, such as cover crops, companion crops, or forage.

With the potential 1992 increase in acres planted for harvest, production could be slightly higher than the 1991 production of 243 million bushels of oats.

Because of increased demand for oats and oat products, the U.S. imports more than 60 million bushels of oats per year. The globally available supply of oats negatively pressures the U.S. market price. Neither the U.S. market price nor the U.S. farm program target price of $1.45 per bushel provides sufficient incentive for producers to grow oats. Oat production in the U.S. continues to decline as farmers respond to farm program and market signals to plant other crops.

The 580 members of the American Oat Association represent all aspects of the oat industry including producers, seed dealers, elevators, researchers, traders, millers, processors, and transportation companies. For more information, contact the American Oat Association, 415 Shelard Parkway, Suite 101, Minneapolis, MN 55426, (612) 542-9817.

Big Foot 5'x7'6"

The Poly Square Big Foot is constructed of Opaque material to eliminate the solar effect. It blocks out sunheat-not sunlight. Poly Square's inverted ribs and 5'(W)x7'6"(L) make it the biggest unit on the market today and extremely wind resistant. It has no pop rivets which means no breaks or cracks for snow and rain to sift in. The unit weighs 100 pounds plus manger & buckets. And Poly Square Big Foot is large enough so your calf can lay in the center, away from cold walls in the winter. Use Poly Square with our side feed station and bottle holder which is perfect for use with a fence in a more traditional setting.

New Side Hay Feeder — Made especially for Poly Square Big Foot, no other unit has this feature. Also has a center roof vent for better air movement.

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

The Eby Wrangler...
★ Better Looking
★ Better Built
★ Better Value

The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications
- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

Grange Works To Cultivate Youth

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — It has been said that our youth are ow most precious resource. The manner in which we raise our children will have an impact on generations to come, according to the Pennsylvania State Grange junior director.

Eleanor Wilson, Wampum, has been working with young people for close to 20 years in the Junior Grange, but said that besides their dress styles, kids are pretty much the same as when she started.

"I've always said that Grange kids are different," Wilson commented. "I'm not like some other adults who look for the faults in ow children. If you can keep kids busy, they'll stay out of trouble and will be willing to do what you ask."

Junior Grange, entering its 105th year, is open to children ages 5-14 as part of the Pennsylvania State Grange. The Grange is a rural family-fraternity which offers members social activities, a legislative voice, community service, and programs such as insurance and cooperative buying programs. But one of the organization's greatest interests is the development of its youth and juniors.

"Junior Grange teaches leadership to young people," Wilson said. "It also teaches them not only to get along with children their own age, but also to get along with everyone."

Contests and programs are offered through the Junior Grange as a way to promote this leadership and develop the children into active citizens. Every year there is a statewide talent competition, creative writing contests, craft contests, and various field trips, including Junior Camp.

At Junior Camp, a Junior Prince and Princess are chosen to represent the Junior Grange for the upcoming year. They are chosen for their knowledge of the Grange, answers to impromptu questions, and an essay.

This interest in the children doesn't end once they leave Junior Grange. At age 14 they can no longer be Junior Grangers but at that point they are eligible to become regular members of their local Granges and part of the Youth Department.

"Where will the Grange and society be in the future if it doesn't nurture its youth?" asks Nettie Kauffman, state youth/young marrieds director.

The Youth Department picks up where the Junior Grange left off by offering various activities and programs that would appeal to the different age groups between 14 and 35. There is an annual Youth Camp, statewide volleyball tournament, public speaking contest, and other honors such as Youth Ambassadors and Outstanding Young Adult.

At Youth Camp, the highlight of the Youth Department's year, one female and one male Youth Ambassador between the ages of 16 and 22 are chosen.

"These Ambassadors win hold their title for a year," said Kauffman, of Bernville. "During their reign, they help spread the word of the Grange by representing the organization at various functions."

The Grange also does its part to develop their young married couples, according to Kauffman. Each fall, a Young Marrieds Weekend is sponsored where couples have the opportunity to get away from home for a while, relax, and socialize with other young couples. There are also a number of educational workshops geared toward the couples on subjects such as remodeling your home, family finances, and writing wills.

No matter what the age, the Grange tries to develop activities and programs to interest their members. These programs are always changing with the times, just like the membership. Over the years Kauffman has noticed some changes.

"Today's youth are a little more open minded than the youth of years ago," Kauffman said. "But they still have a commitment to themselves and a desire to be involved in community service and helping others."

Prepare Early To Combat Weeds

DOVER, Del. — Planting season is just around the corner and farmers are being encouraged to act early to control noxious weed problems before they become unmanageable.

Terry Van Horn, noxious weed specialist with the Department of Agriculture's plant industry section, said landowners and farm operators should contact the department as soon as possible to negotiate noxious weed compliance agreements for this year and to make reservations to borrow weed control equipment made available through the department.

Compliance agreements specify control methods to be used for a variety of noxious weeds in specific crop situations. State law requires all landowners to control the spread of four noxious weeds: Johnsongrass, Canada thistle, giant ragweed, and burcucumber. These species are considered noxious because they spread rapidly and are hard to kill.

Under Delaware law, anyone who willfully allows these weeds to spread, particularly onto another landowner's property, can be fined up to $500. Fines are assessed when weeds reach a height of 24 inches or have set seed.

Van Horn explained that compliance agreements exempt farmers from prosecution even if specified control methods fail, so long as the farmer follows all the terms of the agreement and shows good faith in trying to prevent the spread of the weed.

To assist in the weed control effort, the department makes available on loan pesticide application equipment. Borrowers can reserve equipment by telephone. There is no fee for the service and there is no time limit on loans. However, borrowers are asked to return equipment promptly because of demand. Equipment may be picked up at the department or delivery arrangements can be made.

Available equipment includes wickbars, pump-up sprayers, back back sprayers, motorized sprayers with handguns, and motorized sprayers with 3-point hitches and booms.

Borrowers are responsible for all fuel and chemical costs and for cleaning the spray equipment after use. Information on preparing, using, and cleaning equipment as well as safety precautions for handling chemicals will be provided. Borrowers must sign a waiver releasing the department from responsibility in the event of injury or property damage.

Landowners and farm operators can contact Terry Van Horn, Cliff Blessing, or Dick Van Horn at (302) 739-4811 or (800) 282-8685 for more information about the noxious weed program.

NFO Program Compares Favorably With Study

AMES, Iowa — The National Farmers Organization's grain marketing program compares favorahly with the results of a University of Nebraska (UN) study.

The study was conducted in June 1991 by the UN Agriculture Research Division. The study, titled "An Evaluation of Pre-Harvest Corn Futures and Option Marketing Strategies in Selected Iowa and Nebraska Locations," was directed bv Robert Wisnel, economics professol at Iowa State University.

The NFO program Marketing Plus is a full-service marketing program that encourages producers to sell in time periods established by historical market performance.

The study showed the average annual return over variable cost for 500 acres of north central Iowa corn increased $7,500 to $10,500 from harvest sales by using futures and options.

"The NFO recommends forward contracting one-third of the expected production in the spring and covering the remaining production with put options," said Mark Rohlfing, NFO grain department director.

According to the study, an "option fencing" strategy improved returns over harvest cash sales without storage costs 10 out of 12 years. Nine out of 12 years, put option purchases at planting resulted in greater income than sales at harvest without storage costs.

Rohlfing said, "For the past three years, the NFO has recommended using put options or put/call fences to offset the normal harvest pressure trends."

Put option purchases are less sensitive to over-sold situations than hedges in years when crops are sharply below normal, according to the study. Put options allow producers to follow market plices higher, and hedges do not. Oversold put purchase positions do not have margin calls.

"The Marketing Plus program recommends using put options instead of hedging hecause ofthe one-time premium received with put options," said Rohlfing. "Put options allow the producer to have control of the grain."

According to the study, mid-May put option purchases reduce year-to-year variability of income in areas of low yield risk. These areas include north central Iowa, northwest Iowa, and central Nebraska irrigated areas.

The NFO suggests, in most cases, using put options regardless of the risk. Rohlfing said it is a "cost-effective" insurance that protects against lower than expected yields.

The study showed early July hedges and call purchases should be considered when a short crop is developing. It also showed call options retain upward price flexibility while hedges protect against falling prices.

For the past three years, the NFO has recommended using call options when a short crop develops. Rohlfing said, "The Marketing Plus program encourages using calls if the producer is forced to sell the crop at harvest."

In an oral presentation, Wisner said it is crucial that producers have a systematic marketing plan they can stick to.

The NFO's systematic marketing plan, Marketing Plus, has achieved price averages in the upper one-third of the market. Other studies have shown only 20 percent of all grain is marketed in the upper one-third of the price range.

Rohlfing said, "Combining the Marketing Plus program and futures options can increase grain income for producers."

Organization Names Head Of Maryland Market

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Reginia Prunty, a former North Carolina Extension service agent, was named Market Master for the Southern Maryland Regional Farmers' Market at the organization's annual meeting held recently.

Prunty was chosen from a field of 25 applicants. She will oversee and manage both the wholesale produce auction and the retail farmers' market sales at the Cheltenham warehouse in Prince Georges County located on U.S. Route 301 South.

Prunty holds undergraduate and masters degrees in horticulture from Clemson University.

The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market is an incorporated, non-profit organization. Its 1991 wholesale auction sales were nearly $400,000, representing trade between about 250 farmers and equal number of wholesale buyers. The retail market operates three days per week, selling directly to the general public.

The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market was created in 1989 as the result of suggestions by numerous southern Maryland agricultural organizations and the work of a task force appointed by Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer.

Prunty may be contacted at the market at P.O. Box 144, Cheltenham, MD. 20623, (301) 372-1066.

Planting Rates Key To Successful Crop

Maximum soybean yields begin with proper seeding rates. DEKALB Plant Genetics regional agronomist Bruce Drager says growers may increase soybean profits by carefully controlling plant populations, adjusting those populations for different varieties.

"Growers should be prepared to adjust their planter metering systems in order to accommodate various seed sizes and to ensure even seed distribution," Drager says. "Excessive soybean populations may cause poor standability, produce fewer pods and reduce yield. Thin stands promote weed growth and moisture evaporation by allowing more light to pass through the leaf canopy."

The DEKALB agronomist recommends growers re-adjust their planters each time they change varieties or seed lots to ensure precision planting. Due to normal germination and emergence failure, seeding rates should exceed plant population goals by 10 to 15 percent.

Drager says seeding rates may vary based on time of planting. Earlier-than-normal planting calls for a 10 percent higher seeding rate while extremely late planting or double-cropping calls for 25 to 50 percent more seed.

He says careful row spacing and well-chosen planting dates can also have an effect on profitability.

How do benefits from organic farming methods keep your yields high? Or increase them?

The organic facts, changing times, changing attitudes.

Erth-Rite is composted soil conditioner made from a scientific blend of animal, mineral, plant and marine products. These ingredients, collected from around the world for their farming quality and purity, provide all the basic nutrients your plants need for immediate growth.

For long term benefit, Erth-Rite fertilizers are packed full of extremely beneficial living bacteria as a result of our composting process. When applied to your fields, these bacteria release minerals and trace elements, fix nitrogen from the air, and hold nutrients in the soil where plants can use them for months.

Measurable benefits

Farmers who use the Erth-Rite program report:

- Higher nutrition levels in animal feed. Reduces the need for costly supplements.
- Healthier animals and a reduction in vet bills.
- Plants withstand the effects of drought. Last year, in counties of Pennsylvania that were declared a disaster area because of drought, Erth-Rite farmers reported normal yields.
- And when you use Erth-Rite organic fertilizer you don't have to worry about personal safety and liability issues because the product is natural and 100% safe.

Excellent results

In the past, farmers have been concerned that if they switch to organic farming methods their crops will not yield as much.

Rest easy. Farmers around the county and across the country have seen that crops grown with Erth-Rite have yields equal to crops grown in chemical fertilizer. In fact, many farmers have reported increases in yield.

Ask the experts

At Erth-Rite, we have the products you've been looking for and the know-how to help you farm successfully with organic fertilizers. And we've been helping farmers for over 30 years. When you call, you'll find we are a personable and well organized company ready to assist you.

Seminars—every winter we offer a soils class that shows you how to run a successful organic program and what you can expect in crop improvements. Give us a call to reserve a seat.

Now is the time to try Erth-Rite

We don't expect you to believe everything you read and make a 100% change over night. But we do want you to give us a try—a one-field test plot. You'll see for yourself that organic farming with Erth-Rite produces excellent results. So talk to us about planning for this year or next.

We'll need the results of a soil test. For your convenience we have our own lab, but we'll be happy to work with any other scientific analysis.

We have bins and spreaders for rent and we also do custom spreading. Give us a call for more information and the name of your nearest dealer.

WINCO PTO GENERATORS

Power fails at the worst possible time—restart your whole farm with the number one PTO generator the world over!

ENERGX Corporation, the world's largest PTO generator manufacturer, designs Winco PTO units from the ground up for farm standby power. Built to handle motor loads for the duration of the power outage, and rated for continuous duty operation.

Big motors in your feed room groan to a halt. Vent fans, milk coolers stop. There are no lights, no heating, and no power in the house. For how long? Nobody knows! But with a Winco PTO generator, your farm will be back in business in minutes.

Winco PTO generators are available in sizes from 8KW to 75KW continuous duty. The Maxi-Watt® field coil windings provide extra capacity to restart a big farm at the busiest time of the day.

Winco PTO units will run a combination motor load of up to 1 HP per KW.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown taht 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

ORDER YOUR NEW SILO WITH A FIBERDOME CHUTE OR REPLACE YOUR OLD WORN OUT CHUTE

fiberdome SILO CHUTE

made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7½' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2½" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

PURINA MILLS, INC.

Dairy Tips By Dr. Randy Lyle, Ph.D.

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

Energy is often the nutrient which limits high levels of milk production. Fat is the highest energy ingredient available for use in dairy rations.

Should dairy cows be fed high fat rations? In order to answer this question, several things must be known:

1. What type of fat
2. At what cost
3. Will cows readily eat the high fat ration
4. What is forage type and quality

There are many types of liquid fats used by the feed industry. Tallows and greases are the two broad classes, with tallows being preferred for use in dairy rations.

As with any investment, there should be a measurable economic return. If it costs an extra $40.00 to $50.00 per cow per lactation to feed a high fat ration, look for at least an $80.00 to $100.00 return. It doesn't take a lot of extra milk to generate this extra amount of income.

Don't forget palatability. If consumption is reduced even by a few pounds of dry matter, production will suffer.

In order for high fat products to work properly, forage quality and intakes need to be optimum. At least 45% of total dry matter intake should come from forages that are highly digestible.

High milk production necessitates use of high energy rations. Use of high fat rations is another tool to help you meet the high production goals necessary for profitability.

High 1991 Corn Borer Infestations Have Little Bearing On 1992

WHITE PLAINS, NY — Researchers across the Corn Belt have good news and bad news about European corn borer.

The bad news, as many growers are already painfully aware, is that European corn borer levels in 1991 were some of the worst ever seen.

"Last year was the heaviest corn borer year since our Department of Agriculture started keeping records right after World War II," says entomologist Dr. John Wedberg of the University of Wisconsin.

"The level of corn borer infestation in 1991 was the highest in my memory," agrees Dr. F. Thomas Turpin, Purdue University entomologist. "Driving through corn country at night during peak moth flight was just like driving in a snowstorm.

"We found 100 or more overwintering larvae per square meter in field situations," he adds.

Despite 1991's sizable populations, there is some good news for growers for the upcoming season. None of last year's problems mean very much for 1992.

"The truth of the matter is that this all means very little for this year," says Turpin. "You have the potential to have average or above-average turnouts -- that's it.

"What's really going to make the difference for growers," he adds," is scouting."

Environment Is The Key

The most important factor in determining the size of corn borer populations in a season is the environmental conditions during moth flight, say researchers. Warm, humid mild June nights encourage egg laying and survival, while extremely dry or rainy conditions can lower the chances of a severe infestation.

"This past year, we had really quiet conditions at the time of oviposition," says Turpin. "That was the key."

Eggs are deposited in masses of 15 to 30 on the underside of leaves. In exceptionally dry years, drought stress tends to curl the leaves so egg masses fall off. Likewise, years with a great deal of wind and rain lead to reduced mating and egg-laying success. Hard, beating rains after the eggs hatch can kill up to 90 percent of the larvae within a week.

Have Wings, Will Travel

Unlike many less-mobile secondary insect pests like cutworm, wireworm and seedcorn pests, European corn borer populations are not greatly affected by tillage programs. Researchers say that techniques such as clean plowing and stalk shredding -- while effective at reducing overwintering populations in a single field -- have virtually no impact on corn borer damage the next season.

"Any time a stalk is split open and the corn borer is exposed, it increases the probability of mortality," says Dr. Marlin Rice, an Iowa State University entomologist. "However, we don't recommend stalk shredding or heavy plowing for two reasons.

"First, we're more concerned about soil erosion," he explains. "Wind or water erosion through winter is a much bigger problem. Second, the borers that overwinter in your neighbor's field can fly over to your field in the spring, anyway."

Turpin says that blaming the no-tillers isn't fair, however, since borers can survive in over one hundred plants -- including apples, peppers, snap beans, soybeans, and even potatoes.

"No matter what you do, there will still be borers," he says. "In the 1930s, when they tried to get rid of corn borer in Indiana by passing a law that stated that you had to destroy your corn stalks, we had some of the worst infestations in history."

Scout, Scout, Scout

So what can growers do to manage European corn borer? On this point, researchers are unanimous.

"If you want to put seed in the ground, you have to scout it," says extension entomologist Dr. John Witkowski from the University of Nebraska Experiment Station in Concord, Nebraska.

Rice agrees. "Scouting rates first and second for importance," he says. "Essentially, a farmer doesn't know what he's got until he gets out of his truck and walks his field."

Rice recommends scouting for first generation when the corn plants reach about knee high ( 17 to 18 inches in extended leaf height). Before this stage, corn plants produce a compound called DIMBOA that helps protect them from corn borers. After the plants reach 17 inches, however, the concentration of DIMBOA decreases and corn becomes more susceptible to borer damage.

The most common symptom of early corn borer feeding is the familiar "shot-hole" damage on the leaves. Later leaf feeding can be found down in the whorl. By pulling out the whorl and unrolling the leaves, you can count the live borers and determine whether you need to treat (see sidebar).

If treatment is needed, application of your insecticide must be properly timed for the most effective control.

"If you're not scouting and staying on top of the situation," says Wedberg, "you'll miss the window of activity when you can treat."

Larvae begin tunneling into the stalks about ten days after hatching. The longer you can delay your treatment without sacrificing control, the more natural mortality will occur. Natural mortality in the earliest corn borer stages can be as high as 90 percent.

If you wait too long, however, the larvae may enter the stalk, where insecticides can't reach them. The best time to make a treatment decision is after egg-laying has stopped and before the oldest worms have left the whorl.

Granular vs. Liquid

Researchers agree that the best first generation control is generally obtained by applying granular insecticides like Dyfonate II 20-G. Applied over the whorl, granulars typically provide 80 percent control of first generation larvae.

"Granulars have a tendency to penetrate further into the whorl where the borers are feeding," says Rice. "That makes them more effective."

"Granulars offer a number of application options," says David Walton, ICI product manager for Dyfonate II insecticide. "Dyfonate II may be applied broadcast, using air or ground equipment, or in a band directed over corn rows. Both methods provide excellent corn borer control, as well as reducing fall armyworm populations."

For second generation, opinions on the best formulation differ. Researchers have long said that there is no difference in performance between granulars and liquids on second generation larvae. Conventional wisdom has been in favor of liquids, however, for several reasons.

"For second generation, we don't use granules," says Witkowski. "Generally, there are other insects out there that we want to control -- like corn rootworm beetles, true armyworm and corn earworm -- that aren't as susceptible to granules."

Liquid pyrethroids like Ambush are labeled for all of those secondary pests, and provide excellent corn borer control.

Wedberg agrees. "Liquids give control of adults, and a broader spectrum," he notes. "Pyrethroids like Ambush and Pounce are the most popular insecticides for corn borer control, mostly because they have longer residual activity than some of the older products, and have broad crop labels."

Recent research by Rice, however, has shown that there is a performance difference. He feels that granulars are more effective than liquids on second generation borer for much the same reason that they work so well on first generation.

"The characteristic of the insecticide, the behavior of the insect, and the physical structure of the plant allow granulars to collect in leaf axils -- where the second generation larvae love to feed," he says.

While it's too early to say whether 1992 will bring more of the same corn borer problems as 1991, scouting your fields will go a long way toward helping you reduce borer damage and prevent yield losses.

BARN PAINTING
SPRAY & BRUSHING

To farm building owners —
Under today's farm economy it is time to reduce maintenance frustrations.

Do you remember of hearing of barn painting of approximately 75 years ago that it stayed nice longer? lasted 25 years?

Observation #1 In recent years many of these good old barn surfaces have been ruined by over-coating, poor preparation and application, lack of controlled paint placement and film thickness. The time is coming to salvage our buildings (a) Start over (b) Water blast (c) RESURFACE (d) Use solid stain to penetrate on bare spots! (e) Second coat with a breathing film thickness (f) Brush out in all directions with finest of bristles.

Really it is not as complicated as the recent changing regulations on clean milk production, or wet soils, or zoning. It is also less expensive than other barn painting experiences!

Observation #2 Colored water (latex) is less desirable for farm buildings. There is a long list of reasons for this.

Observation #3 Todays painted metal siding and roofing has a remarkably short life. Bad alloy or metal. There might be another list of reasons for this. To save it at reasonable coating cost - timing is important.

Observation #4 Today's wood selection for siding etc. is also poor. How about recycling building material?

NFO Submits Milk Pricing Proposals

AMES, Iowa — The National Farmers Organization (NFO) recently submitted two proposals for the Minnesota and Wisconsin (M & W) milk pricing formula.

The United States Department of Agriculture is rewriting the M & W formula. Proposals have been sent to the USDA from various dairy industry representatives.

The NFO Dairy Department submitted the two proposals after receiving input from NFO members on milk costs of production. The proposals were drafted by the Dairy Department staff.

One of the proposals is "short and to the point," said Walt Albers, NFO Dairy Department director. "It's the one that should be adopted if commonsense prevails."

The short proposal reads, "The basic formula price... shall not be less than the economic (full ownership) cost of milk production, national average, as reported by the ERS (Economic Research Service), USDA, for the most recently reported calendar year."

"We don't expect the short proposal to go far," said Albers, so the NFO submitted a longer proposal.

In the longer proposal, "we pointed out that the ERS study on milk production costs were very accurate, with one major exception — the dairy farmer's personal labor cost," he said.

The ERS study was "accurately" taken from income tax statements and farm management records, said Albers. "However, by not taking into account the cost of the farmer's personal labor, the study was flawed," he said.

The NFO proposal states that adding an "equitable" cost for personal labor should add $2.50 to $3 per hundredweight (cwt.) to the farmers' price of milk, Albers said.

"We propose that the basic formula price under the federal order system be floored at a level reflecting the necessary economic costs involved in producing milk," he said. "A floor price would bring a level of price security to dairy farmers which is absolutely critical to retain the nation's milk-producing capacity."

The NFO wants to "carry forward into the price of raw milk a more competitive value for manufacturing milk, which would become the base price for all milk under the federal order system," said Albers.

Albers also said the NFO supports a Grade A/Grade B (AB) milk price series to replace the Grade B formula currently being used.

"We support an AB price series product formula as an update on the current milk price, used only for price updating with the new M & W formula," he said. "Essentially, what this means is that the farmers' price of milk should reflect price increases and decreases in the supermarket prices for dairy products."

Albers said the USDA will soon hold a formal hearing on the M & W formula, and the NFO will "take an active role in the hearings."

"A properly balanced new M & W formula could greatly assist dairy farmers," said Albers.

Rep. Cole Wants Grant For Youth

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— State Rep. Kenneth J. Cole, D-Adams, has urged the secretary of agriculture to act on a law establishing a grant program for Pennsylvania's agriculture and rural youth organizations.

In a letter to the secretary, Cole stressed the urgency of completing guidelines necessary for the implementation of the Agriculture and Rural Youth Development Act.

Cole wrote, "This law was passed by both chambers of the General Assembly and was signed by the Governor in only three months. This is an indication of the vital importance state government has placed on educating our youth about Pennsylvania's number one industry. It is unfortunate that 7 months and 28 days have passed without guidelines for this program."

Cole was the prime sponsor of the bill now known as the Agriculture and Rural Youth Development Act. This legislation provides grants to students enrolled in agricultural organizations for special projects, educational programs, and certain equipment purchases.

The Department of Agriculture serves as the program's administrator and, to date, the guidelines, necessary before youth organizations can even apply for the grants, are not finalized. The legislation was signed into law August 6.

Organizations such as the FFA and 4-H are examples of those waiting to apply for this funding.

Brian Campbell, Adams County FFA advisor for New Oxford High School, said his organization and the County 4-H program have been waiting for the enactment of this program since it was first discussed a year and a half ago.

"The Adams County 4-H and FFA have been discussing the possibility of building a swine and sheep facility at the South Mountain fairgrounds. It would house livestock for the South Mountain Fair and for the FFA annual livestock show in July. Money for this just simply is not available," Campbell said.

"We've put everything on hold until the Department of Agriculture will accept applications for the grant program."

Campbell also said that there are many other programs in the County being put on hold until the funding is available.

"We've given our children a future of tough agricultural and economic decisions. We must allow them every opportunity to develop the skills and knowledge necessary to face these trials and tribulations with assertion. The time is now to get this funding to our youth organizations," Cole said.

FFA Foundation Sets First Past Officers' Luncheon

PAOLI (Chester Co.) — The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation is planning to host the first annual Past State Officers' Luncheon on June 18th, the last day of Activities Week, the statewide annual convention for the FFA. Honorary chairman of the event is William E. Campbell of Centre County, the oldest living past state officer.

Co-chairmen of the event are Dennis Grumbine, State FFA President, '63-'64, and Glen Wenger, State Vice-President, '81-'82. "Our immediate first goal is to update the addresses of all state officers since 1928. Through the years, lists of officers have been lost and not updated. The state officer lists from the 1930's, 1940's, 1950's, and 1960's are in particularly bad shape," states Wenger.

Mary Jo Cancelmo, Foundation director said they are asking any former state officer to contact the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation office and leave their name, address, year of being a state officer, and phone number. The Foundation office number is 1-215-648-0674.

"We are also planning to mail letters to last known addresses of approximately 300 former state officers and also plan on requesting help from local FFA chapters and retired teachers in locating some of the missing state officers," Cancelmo said. "Wenger is coordinating these activities and is looking for volunteers from former state officers in assisting him to make contacts."

Dennis Grumbine is coordinating events prior to and including the luncheon.

"We know many former officers will be coming from far away, so we will be taking overnight reservations," Grumbine said. "A hospitality suite will be open the Wednesday night for those coming early. We feel that many former officers will like the idea that they can relax the night before and catch up on old times with fellow team members. This also gives all of us time to sit in on the FFA convention to see how things have changed. The state officer alumni will have a chance to be VIPs at the closing ceremonies where the new state office team for 1992-93 will be announced.

"The FFA State Officer reunion luncheon will honor both the retiring state officer team and the newly elected officers. Comments from various former state officers will be made," Grumbine said. "We are planning on making this luncheon special, from the selection of the menu right on down to entertainment and a guest speaker.

"We want all former officers to enjoy themselves so much that they will make a special effort to stay in touch, and they will want to come back next year."

A state officer alumni directory will also be available, made up from the information sent back

"We also hope that many of the retired teachers will also return to this special Activities' Week luncheon. Many of us as state officer alumni would like to visit with our advisors," Wenger said.

National Dairy Board Meets, Discusses Promotion Strategies

ARLINGTON, Va. — Fleshing out the details and approving programs for the new year which begins May 1 were the focus of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board meeting March 18-19 in St. Louis.

"During the next year, we will be looking for even more ways to work with other promotion groups," said Lester Evans, Missouri dairyman and chairman of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board.

"We will build on last year's programs and work with others whenever possible. That helps stretch dairy farmer dollars further, getting a bigger bang for the buck for all dairy farmers."

As an example, board members voted to work with the United Dairy Industry Association and Hershey's on a summer ice cream and toppings promotion. By buying a half gallon of ice cream and three Hersheys toppings, consumers get up to $2 off a second half gallon of ice cream.

NDB is putting up $1.2 million for advertising and the cost of coupon distribution. Hershey's will cover the redemption costs on ice cream and UDIA will provide point-of-purchase materials, promotion to grocers and wholesalers as well as sponsor a retailer display contest. The promotion begins in July.

The board also voted to join UDIA in its fall cheese promotion.

NDB will fund $1.05 million in media support. UDIA will fund $2.2 million in media. Both organizations will run the 15-second spot "Cheese Snack Facts" produced by UDIA two years ago.

By pooling their money together to buy television time, NDB and UDIA should be able to get even more coverage, said Bill Underwood, New York dairy farmer and NDB advertising committee chairman.

A 60-second radio commercial "Snacktime" with a top 40 rhythm aimed at promoting chocolate milk to kids and teens was approved by the board.

It is available to state and regional promotion groups as well as American branded products.

Selling more fluid milk by targeting specific consumer segments is one of NDB's priorities for FY 1993.

Another major area of coordination is the School Food Breakfast Program. Board members approved a plan to work with the National Dairy Council to increase the number of schools offering breakfast as well as the number of students participating at each school.

"Only about 3 million out of 18 million kids participate in school breakfast programs," said Alvin Sherman, Washington dairyman and chairman of NDB's public relations committee.

"The program has the potential to move 735 million pounds of milk. Once we get more schools in the program, we need to let kids and parents know it's available for everyone.

Families with both parents working often don't have time to make breakfast. Breakfast gives kids the energy they need to learn and grow."

In other areas, NDB members voted to continue programs that include placing articles about the benefits of eating dairy foods in popular consumer magazines.

Examples from last year include articles about how cheese prevents cavities which appeared in Redbook and People magazines as well as newspaper stories which feature recipes using dairy ingredients.

In addition, NDB will work with grocery story information departments to supply them with brochures and recipes featuring dairy foods.

To keep all dairy foods a part of consumers' diets, board members decided to continue a program called "Resetting the American Table."

This program brings health and taste professionals together, emphasizing the benefits of moderation and variety in the diet.

That helps remove the "bad" foods stigma plaguing many foods.

The board approved $400,000 to fund regional conferences as well as local speaker teams, direct mail to health and food professionals, publicity to consumers and articles on the quality diet concept in leading health journals.

"In issues management, NDB decided to suspend distribution of materials regarding milk safety related to BST," said Sherman. "We will just monitor the situation as we do all issues which could affect consumer dairy sales. Protecting milk's pure and wholesome image is a top priority for NDB," he said.

The board approved the annual

PROWL® Knocks Triazine-Resistant Weeds On Their Ear.

PROWL® herbicide handles the toughest triazine-resistant weeds in corn, like pigweed, lambsquarters and kochia. Other tough grasses and broadleaf weeds like foxtails, velvetleaf* and woolly cupgrass* are also controlled all season long with PROWL. Plus, PROWL® herbicide costs about 25% an acre less than comparable Dual[1] or Lasso[2] tank mixes.

Con-till or conventional till. PROWL works in any tillage system and can be applied anytime after planting, up to the four-leaf stage. Do NOT incorporate PROWL in corn.

Tank mix PROWL and get even broader-spectrum control for problem weeds like wild proso millet, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass.

This season, for proven cost-effective control of grasses and broadleaf weeds in corn, put PROWL to work in your fields.

plan for the Southeast Dairy Foods Research Center at North Carolina State and Mississippi State Universities.

The approval ensures NDB funding of $400,000 for the fifth year of operation of the Center from July 1, 1992 through June 30, 1993.

The Center focusses research in the areas of bioprocessing, effects of chemical and thermal processing and control of microorganisms in dairy products.

The Board also approved the renewal request for the second phase of the Wisconsin Center for Dairy Research. The renewal will extend the WCDR for four years, from July, 1993 until June 1997.

The research areas emphasized at the Center include cheese technology, milk component utilization, dairy food safety and quality and technology transfer.

In other product research, significant progress was reported in the technological efforts on iron fortified cheese. Outcomes to date include manufacturing specifications, safety evaluation, quality testing and consumer interest in the product.

The Board approved continuation of the project to include nutritional research.

"There is a real need to determine the nutritional benefits of the product," said Harold E. Reiff, Indiana dairy farmer and chairman of the Dairy Foods and Nutrition Research Committee.

"These studies will provide information about iron absorption by females and males as well," he said.

Under current programs, NDB will begin airing a new 15-second cheese commercial. It shows moms another way to serve cheese as a snack by wrapping it around other foods like apple slices or breadsticks.

The commercial will begin airing in early April.

It was reported that at the same time the dairy industry's 1991 holiday butter promotion was going on, the industry saw an extra 3.8 million pounds of butter during November and December. In effect, it was said that there is a cause and effect relationship between two.

National, state and regional dairy promotion organizations as well as butter manufacturers participated in the promotion. Results were determined by comparing actual butter sales during the promotion periods to expected sales based on historical trends.

The board will meet May 20-21 in Washington, D.C. for the annual meeting. New members will be installed and new officers elected at that time.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers, develops and administers a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education to strengthen the dairy industry's position in the marketplace.

Bull To Prove

HUGHSON, Calif.— Ricecrest SAMSON-et, Reg. 2155748, a young Holstein bull bred by Frcd & Dale Rice, Chambersburg, has been selected for sampling in the young sire proving program of Landmark Genetics.

His semen has just been released for use in herds on official DHIA test throughout the United States.

As a member of Landmark Genetics' "GO" (Genetic Opportunity) Program, SAMSON is undergoing thorough testing. He has successfully passed his health tests and the goal now is to get a minimum of 50 daughters milking in 40 herds across the U.S. for a high reliability on his first proof.

Kevin Carhart, regional sire analyst for Landmark Genetics, an international, artificial breeding company, said, "We've selected this youngster because of his outstanding bloodlines. SAMSON is a son of Southwind, one of the new emerging sires of prominence for TPI in the breed today."

His dam is a special Ned Boy daughter scorcd EX 90 with big production records and high components for three generations. SAMSON's dam is one of the bcst known cows in Pennsylvania. At 2 years, she made 24,940 pounds of milk, 4.1 percent, 1,018 pounds of fat, and 3.3 percent, 823 pounds of protein.

Her dam, sired by Jemini, is an extreme cow for dairyness, with great depth and openness of rib. She is VG 87 with 32,190 pounds of milk, 4 percent, 1,293 pounds fat, and 3 percent, 973 pounds of protein. The next dam, by Elevation is VG 86 with over 150,000M lifetime.

SAMSON combines a high TPI sire in Southwind, with a high TPI cow family to bring improved genctics at an accelerated pace to your herd." Semen from SAMSON, according to Carhart, will be available for sampling in the "GO" Hcrd Program for the next 60 to 90 days. For more information, contact Landmark Genetics (209) 883-4001.

Manure Values Not Accurate, Research Continues

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Manure analysis has been established as an important tool in developing effective manure management programs for farms in Pennsylvania.

Results of nine years of manure analysis has indicated that using book values or average values for manure nutrient content may be off by up to 100 percent on any individual farm.

Thus it is critical that individual manure samples be analyzed on each farm if manure management is going to be optimized for maximum economic benefits for the farmer and minimum impact on the environment.

To help facilitate the use of manure analysis over the last nine years, Penn State Cooperative Extension made arrangements with a private lab to do the anaylsis and made manure mailing containers available through the county extension offices.

This program has been quite successful and Penn State has led the way in increasing the interest in manure anaylsis.

As a result, other labs are now in the manure analysis business and we now feel that the time has come to expand the program.

Thus, we will continue to provide manure mailing containers through county extension offices, however the choice of laboratory to send the sample to will be up to you.

This program is being conducted to both assist you and to allow us to collect information necessary for use in developing improved manure management programs for Pennsylvania.

A copy of your results will be sent to your county agent. With these results, your county agent will be better able to answer questions and assist you with your manure management program.

The results of the analyses will also be entered into a state-wide database for summarization.

No individual results will be released outside of Penn State without prior permission. Only results from samples submitted with this information sheet will be sent to the county agent and included in the database.

If you do not want your results to be included in this part of the program do not use this manure analysis kit.

Contact the lab you want to use about directly submitting a manure sample to them. There is no difference in cost whether you submit a sample through this program or directly to the lab.

Every effort was made to contact all of the labs doing manure analyses in Pennyslvania.

Of the labs that were contacted, the ones listed responded that they will accept the Penn State mailing kits and information sheets; they will report their results on an "as is" basis to minimize conversions; they will provide Penn State with a copy of each result from a sample submitted in our kit; and they have agreed to provide quality control documentation.

Other labs will be added to the list if they express an interest and agree to the above conditions.

If you know of a lab that is not on the list, have them contact us or send us their name so that we can contact them.

Your comments on any part of this program would be very welcome. Please send them to: Extension Manure Analysis Program, Agronomy Extension, 116 ASI Building, Penn State University, University Park, 16802.

If you have any questions about manure management, contact your local extension office.

AJCC Junior Show Rules Change

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Junior exhibitors of Jersey cattle need to note several changes in the rules for the 1992 All American Junior Jersey Show.

This show is the highlight of the year for Jersey juniors throughout the United States and Canada. The show is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 7, at the Kentucky Fair and Exhibition Center in Louisville, Ky.

Please note the following rules and contact The American Jersey Cattle Club with any questions.

1. Eligibility: Participation in this show is open to all boys and girls with registered Jerseys, especially those participating in 4-H dairy clubs, vocational agriculture, and similar programs. Exhibitors must be no yollnger than nine as of January 1, 1992, and no older than 19 as of January 1, 1992.

2. Entries: All animals must be registered in the Herd Book of The American Jersey Cattle Club or the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club. Ownership must show on the registration certificate in the name of the junior exhibitor, family partnership/corporation, or family farm. Animals owned by a partnership or farm qualify to show only if the partnership exists between family members. Project animals must be transferred into the junior's name by July 1, 1992; or, in case of an animal registered in the name of a family partnership or farm, an affidavit submitted by supervising county agent, or vo-ag instructor, and also signed by the parent, certifying the animal is properly enrolled as the current project of the junior shall establish ownership of this project. Affidavits cannot list more than two animals for each All American Junior Show class. This affidavit must be received at the AJCC office by the date applicable in the state to begin a project and in no case later than July 1, 1992. In the event a boy or girl is not enrolled in 4-H or FFA project work, an affidavit signed by his parent will suffice. The recorded date and not the delivery date will be considered the transfer date. Registration papers will be checked at the show.

3. Participation: Only one animal may be exhibited by each exhibitor in any one class. Not more than four animals not bred by the junior may be exhibited. In order to qualify as breeder, the registration paper must show the individual exhibitor only as breeder. To be eligible to compete for cash awards, an animal must be shown by the junior owner in all cases except by prior written approval from N.A.I.L.E. Adults are not allowed to show in any case.

Showmanship will be a lead-out class at the 1992 All American Junior Iersey Show. The showmanship class will be held immediately after naming the champion of the junior show. Showmanship will be divided into a junior and senior division. Exhibitors need to enter the showmanship class at the same time their junior show entries are due. Premium lists and entry forms for the All American Jersey Shows are available by writing: North American Intemational Livestock Exposition, P.O. Box 36367, Louisville, KY, 40233-6367; or by calling 502/588-3166.
